

GOING down from New York to Washington takes five hours by fast train—just as long as from San Francisco to Fresno. During that time you are in six sovereign states and cross five frontiers. You cross the same number of county lines in the California trip. In parts of Europe, you would pass as many national frontiers. Nations were made horseback size in Europe; states in Eastern America, and counties in Western America. And the lines remain, in the age of the airplane and radio, just where they were placed in the age of the mule path or the sandaled courier.

BUT here is the contrast in America. In horseback size East or railroad size West, from sea to sea, you cross those frontiers without even knowing, except for curiosity, where they are. You are under different sovereignties, but their laws all operate on you alike. There are no customs formalities; no obstructions to the passage of goods, men or ideas; the people all speak the same language, wear the same clothes, read the same news; they have identical school systems and cultural standards, and they all feel themselves one people.

We in America are so accustomed to this that we take it for granted, as the normal state of affairs. On the contrary, it exists nowhere else on earth. The only comparable countries are China, Russia, and India, and in those the language, cultural and racial differences divide the people inextricably, so that the very word "nation" is meaningless to them. There is no word for "China," in Chinese, nor for "India," in any Indian dialect, because there has never been any such idea to express; and the word "Russia" has been abolished by law by the soviet government. If you address your mail to "Moscow, Russia," it will be refused transmission, on the ground that there is no such country. All the rest of world is either smaller countries, with their net of obstructive frontiers and their babel of tongues, or else great spaces, like Brazil or Australia, which are out of the comparison.

If America has been able to progress, physically, as no other country has ever done since frontierless Rome broke up into the confusion of tribes, this single advantage is more than half of the explanation. • • •

THE New York legislature, which meets every year, has passed 178 new laws as this year's grist. Governor Smith will veto some of them, but enough will be left to average fully three new laws a day for every working day of the entire year. And this goes on every year, forever. A competent law clerk, with nothing else to do, might possibly catch up with each year's laws before the next year's began. No active lawyer could do so, and of course the common citizen does not even know of the existence of one in a hundred of them, nor really understand the provisions of a single one. The fiction that every man is presumed to know the law becomes constantly more fictitious. • • •

OF COURSE it is not all as bad as it seems statistically. Many of these laws are technical, affecting only a few people, and these few, or their expert advisers, can know them. Many of them are permissive, authorizing people to do what they would be free to do anyway, except for the inadvertent prohibition of some other law. Many of them are regulatory, to be administered by responsible experts. Nobody but the index clerk has to be acquainted with all of them, and few people have to know many of them. The burden on the individual, to keep free of legal pitfalls, is relatively slight. And life has grown so complex that laws have to be complex, too. The "good old days" of simplicity are gone forever. • • •

NEVERTHELESS, in the multiplicity of laws there is a real evil. The remedy may not be in fewer laws. Perhaps it is in two more laws. The local traffic laws of Washington are complicated beyond comprehension because Congress refuses to pass one simple amendment making obedience to the traffic signs mandatory. The prohibition law is so complicated that nobody understands it, because Congress refuses to delegate the making of detailed regulations to the regulatory authorities. This is the method in other countries. Legislative enactments merely lay down what is to be done and who is to do it. The formulation of details is an administrative function. We have followed this rule, timidly, in a few branches of administration, like the forest service, but there is always a fuss over doing even that. A single change adopting this familiar and tested principle, would remove most of the complexity of our laws. But we might have to adopt one additional change, to hold the law administrators more effectively responsible to the law makers. These two laws would render ten thousand others superfluous.

Boat Laden With Whiskey Seized

LONG BEACH, May 5.—The fishing boat Mauritus, loaded with 300 cases of whiskey, valued at $20,000, today was a prisoner of the U. S. coast guard cutter CG-261.

The Mauritus was captured after a brief chase in the harbor, as she was heading toward Long Beach with her cargo, presumably from a British boat lurking near the Channel Islands.

Two men who manned the rum-runner escaped.

Plane Building Measure Passed

WASHINGTON, May 5.—With a record vote, the house today passed the Morin bill, providing a five-year building program for the army air service. The measure, an outgrowth of the recent aviation controversy, was approved by the administration.

Under the Morin bill, the officer personnel of the air service will total 1650, while the enlisted strength will aggregate 15,000 men. At the end of the five-year building program in the bill, the air service will have 2200 first-class planes.

The measure creates a new assistant secretary of war to handle all aviation problems and establishes an air section in the general staff, which has been frequently criticized for refusing requests of the air service.

BALDWIN FIRM ON PEACE TERMS

Harbor Election to Be Held June 10

COUNTY WILL PROCEED ON BOND VOTING

Any Question in Regard to Validity Must Be Decided Later, Supervisors Hold ISSUE IS UNSETLED

Board Acts When Court of Appeals Fails to Rule on Points Brought Before It

THE $1,200,000 Newport Harbor bond election will be held on June 10, and if any technical question regarding the validity of the bonds is raised, in the event the issue carries, it may be settled afterward.

This was the decision reached late yesterday by the county supervisors, after they had been confronted with decision of the district court of appeals, which failed to provide the desired advance ruling on legal points raised in a mandamus proceeding.

After discussing the situation with District Attorney A. P. Nelson and Attorney L. A. West, counsel in the mandamus action, the board could see no way of testing the harbor bonding act before calling an election.

Testing the act by use of injunctive proceedings would require possibly a year or two, the attorneys said. They regarded the suggestion of applying for a writ of review as equally impractical and doubtful.

"In the meanwhile, my message to Canton had arrived and the committee notified the Portuguese authorities, who instructed the Patria which was cruising nearby, to pick me up."

A big celebration, dance and reception for the airman is planned here tonight.

Boulder Dam Vote Is Delayed

WASHINGTON, May 5.—A final vote on the Swing-Johnson Boulder dam bill was deferred today by the house irrigation committee. The committee expected to vote on the measure, but decided to hear Secretary of Commerce Hoover and Elwood Mead, commissioner of reclamation, in executive session Friday, before considering amendments and balloting.

LOST SPANISH FLYER PICKED UP BY GUNBOAT

(By United Press)

MACAO, China, May 5.—The story of how the airplane in which he was flying from Madrid to Manila was smashed at Tinapak, 100 miles north of Kwang Chow Wan bay, was told today by Captain Loriga, Spanish aviator, on being picked up by the Portuguese gunboat Patria, after being missing several days.

Bad weather and engine trouble forced us to descend on rocky terrain, where the plane smashed," Loriga told the United Press.

"I spent two days trying to communicate with Macao and finally dispatched a telegram to the French consul at Canton," he said.

"But I received no reply.

"Finally I undertook to walk.

"I traveled throughout the night in a torrential rain, resulting in heavy mud. I found a small passenger ship bound for Macao.

"In the meanwhile, my message to Canton had arrived and the committee notified the Portuguese authorities, which was cruising nearby, to pick me up."

A big celebration, dance and reception for the airman is planned here tonight.

STILLMANS BACK FROM HONEYMOON

NEW YORK, May 5.—Back with her husband from their second honeymoon, "which was ever so much better than our first," Mrs. James A. Stillman beamed happily upon a small group of reporters and cameramen as she arrived aboard the liner Olympic today. She discussed pleasantly her theories of life and conduct.

Stillman, the multimillionaire banker, whose reunion with his wife followed years of hectic legal battles, stayed in the background, content to let his wife do most of the talking.

She did from the first moment she was confronted with the newspapermen and cried:

"Oh, dear me! This is what you call a reception."

VANDERBILT PAPER IN BAY CITY QUIT

SAN FRANCISCO, May 5.—The Illustrated Daily Herald, owned by Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., today ceased publication, with the following statement appearing on the first page of its final edition:

"Unless the unexpected happens, this issue of the Illustrated Daily Herald will be the last."

"Employes of the Herald have carried on for three days with the hope that arrangements could be made by heads of Vanderbilt Newspapers, Inc., to complete its refinancing or sell the Herald."

"Today's issue exhausts the last of the paper stock. The Herald employees can continue no further."

Two men who manned the rum-runner escaped.

Greer Makes Selections Of New Men for Traffic Squad in Orange County

WILL PICK TWO MORE

Jobs Go to Barnhill, Sawyer and Peterkin, Given Supervisors' Indorsement

WITH THE ANNOUNCEMENT

that three new men have been appointed as state traffic officers for Orange county, further developments toward making the Orange county squad one of the best in the state, as promised by Walter P. Greer, state inspector, Monday, began to take form today.

Greer announced, after a long conference with the board of supervisors yesterday afternoon, that the board had agreed to increase the local squad by four, giving Orange county a working force of 10 men, instead of six, excluding the captain.

Five Names Submitted

The board voted their confidence in Greer by presenting him with five names of men approved for appointment to the squad, one of whom was to replace Louis J. Heffner, veteran officer, who was dismissed yesterday.

Greer was instructed to select the men he wanted for the squad, giving him the right to reject any he did not feel was the proper man for the place.

From this list, Greer announced the appointment of three men today. They are Vernon Barnhill, veteran Santa Ana motorcycle officer, who has had 14 years' experience and was the first man selected; Ernest Sawyer, traffic officer, of Anaheim, who has been on duty there for the last 19 months, and who was highly recommended to Greer, and George Peterkin, Orange city officer.

Will Appoint Two More

Two additional men will be appointed within the next few days, it was said. Greer declared he wanted more time in looking over the records of the other two candidates and that he wanted to be sure he was right about his man before putting him to work.

The three men appointed today will go to work tomorrow morning.

They are busy today tendering their resignations to the various city governments for which they have been working.

Supporters of Governor Richardson in Orange county today indicated that it possibly would be two or three weeks before the executive could get away from the office.

Former Judge Candidate

With the announcement that some time will expire before the appointment finally is made, also comes the announcement that Judge W. H. Thomas, former judge here and in Los Angeles, and well known to members of the Orange County Bar association, is a candidate for the appointment.

It was learned that Governor Richardson had mailed application blanks to all persons whose names had been presented to him as likely candidates. Persons in the county who want to make application are asked to send to Sacramento for an application blank.

Another Shakeup Rumored

Rumors were current today that another shakeup in the personnel of the local squad would be forthcoming tomorrow or Friday, but Greer released nothing for publication regarding it.

"I am entirely pleased with a great majority of the squad here now, and I am sure that Orange county is going to feel mighty proud of its organization within a few weeks," Greer said.

Greer intimated that he would stay here for several weeks, or until a time when he is certain that he has accomplished his work here, and the reorganized squad had settled down to work.

"I am just a clean-up man from Sacramento," said Greer. "Sacramento headquarters had no idea of the conditions here as I found them and I do not seek any credit myself. I am here to make matters better and to give this squad the best men I can find. I deeply appreciate the confidence the board of supervisors has placed in me, a stranger to them, and I'll certainly do my best to make them glad they have put matters in my hand."

U. S. CONTRACT FOR 40 AIR MAIL CRAFT AWARDED

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON, May 5.—A contract was awarded to the Douglas company, Santa Monica, Calif., to furnish 40 airplanes for use in the government-operated transcontinental air service between New York and San Francisco, by Postmaster General New, today.

The post-office department will pay $1,900 for each plane, New said. Under the terms of the contract, the ships will be delivered within 160 days.

When the 40 new planes are placed in service, the government will have 165 ships available for operation on the coast-to-coast line.

PLANE BUILDER WINS WIDE REPUTATION

SANTA MONICA, May 5.—Donald W. Douglas, builder of America's round-the-world planes, has won an international reputation for his work in building up America's air fleet. In addition to the round-the-world ships, he built the NC type carriers for the San Francisco-Hawaii flight that failed only because of lack of fuel, and has constructed many planes for the government's mail and war services.

HAMMER WILL FLY FROM L. A. TO SEATTLE

LOS ANGELES, May 5.—Haakon H. Hammer, noted aviator and explorer, will fly from Los Angeles to Seattle tomorrow in a test flight of the new Pacific coast air mail service, to be inaugurated between the two cities early in June. Hammer is one of the backers and officers of the Pacific Air Transport, which will operate government air mail service between Los Angeles and Seattle. He is making his flight in one of the new air mail planes built by the Ryan Aircraft company, San Diego.

MYSTERY SEEN IN IMPORTER'S DEATH

SANTA MONICA, May 5.—An autopsy was held, today over the body of Jack N. Goulding, Hindoo-American importer, drowned off the municipal pier here Sunday.

The probe was ordered by Frank Nancy, Los Angeles county coroner, on receipt of a telegram from the victim's wife in New York, hinting a murder motive in the mysterious drowning.

The wire from Mrs. Goulding, according to county authorities, was accompanied by a telegraphic communication from Chief Inspector of Police Lahey, of New York, disclosing alleged information that Goulding had been engaged here in an illegal business, and had recently quarreled with his partner, Abnash Ran, a Hindu. Ran was held for questioning in Los Angeles.

FIREFMEN OF CITY AT BIG BANQUET

A chicken dinner that reminded guests of times when chicken was cheap, together with a score of other delicacies that filled the big table on the second floor of the Central Fire station, was served last night to 40 firemen and their friends.

Guests at the banquet were members of the city council, all of which but one were present. Members of the regular force, honorary and volunteer firemen were present.

The meal, as sumptuous as ever served in the fire hall, was cooked by Chief Chef William Fox, of Fire company No. 2, who was ably assisted by H. Reed and Bud Lacy, firemen.

Following the banquet, the firemen gathered in the lounge room and card games were started.

The banquet and entertainment last night was one of several held from time to time by the firemen, all of which abound with good things to eat and light entertainment.

The hall was decorated for the occasion by numerous flowerers by John Ross, local plant and bulb grower.

PLAY IS PRESENTED BY LATIN STUDENTS

Latin students of the Santa Ana polytechnic high school were told of Italy, country of the Caesars, by Miss Verna Peterson, former teacher here, when the Latin club met last night in the music room of the high school. The evening's entertainment was in charge of Miss Anna Trythall, language teacher.

A cast of students presented the play, "Prosperine," interpreting the ancient myth to explain the causes of the seasons.

The story of the play was told by Oscar Lapum. Students in the cast were Ethel May Kinley, Elpha Thorndike, Harry Rademacher, Merton Butler, Nell Hall, Mary Jane Brunner, Lucile Meyer and Dorothy Lindsey.

Miss Ione Hanson presided over the meeting. Other numbers on the program were piano solo, by Miss Luella Chapman, and a vocal solo, by Miss Corinne Blackburn.

County May Take Over Insectary

A plan, whereby the county will take over the operation of the Orange County Insectary, in Anaheim, will be discussed Thursday with the directors of the Orange County Pest Control association, in Anaheim, according to County Horticultural Commissioner A. A. Brock.

The principal function of the insectary is the production of lady bugs, which destroy the mealy bugs prevalent in many Orange county orchards and groves.

Brock estimated that an expenditure of between $9000 and $10,000 would be required to operate the "bug factory."

The county supervisors discussed the plan at their meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Livestock Rate Case Dismissed

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The interstate commerce commission today dismissed a complaint of the American National Livestock association against rates on cattle from points in Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, and all points west of the Missouri river to the Pacific coast.

The action was taken reluctantly, the commission stated, but in view of the pending readjustment of all livestock rates in the west, the case was dismissed without prejudice to the complainants' right to bring the matter up again.

Debt Agreements Please Coolidge

WASHINGTON, May 5.—President Coolidge is highly gratified by the foreign debt funding settlements totaling $22,143,000,000, which the bipartisan debt commission has achieved under the leadership of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon. While expressing high appreciation for the work of the American commission, the presidential spokesman said most credit was due Mellon, in whose financial judgment the American people and foreign financiers have complete confidence.

Eight central London theaters have closed and others contemplated closing, it is announced today.

Stock exchange business was still further curtailed. Gilt-edge descriptions closed under their highest for the day.

Thousands of gallons of gasoline have been run into the gutters as a result of the strike and resultant disorders in London's dockland.

Hundreds of strikers yesterday refused to permit gasoline to leave the docks. An oil company manager told the United Press that the strikers had opened taps, permitting gasoline to flow into the sewers.

Extra police have been summoned to the Silvertown district, where further disorder threatens.

Strikers Attempt to Halt Bus Service

STOKE-ON-TRENT, England, May 5.—Seven thousand strikers today unsuccessfully sought to halt strike-breaking bus service, which was operating under police guard.

The strikers hurled stones, breaking bus windows, but were surrounded by the police, who finally volunteers, was reflected primarily in the hourly enlargement of train service and the extension of food distribution.

The government communiqué at noon announced that there were no signs of panic; that an attempt had been made to interfere with the bus service in Nottingham, but that the situation was giving no anxiety.

Approximately 300,000 copies of the British Gazette, official government newspaper, had been distributed throughout England and additional copies were being printed.

Twelve to 15 provincial news papers were being published, including two afternoon papers. The others are weekly.

In the north Midlands, 80 per cent of the Midland railway clerks were working. A small section of the London subway was running and six-minute service was expected by tomorrow. The subways have received 3000 volunteer workers, as many as they can can.

A WORD OF COMFORT

You are tried and weary and foot-sore; you have suffered much out on the open road, where ones must ever press on.

What you need for a while is to be left behind; the old ways where comfort may be found.

Without His guidance and companionship you cannot find satisfaction for your needs. Draw close to Him; follow where He leads, and you shall find the rest and refreshment you crave.

WHY

Is a man hung by the neck and not by the foot? Why is a broken neck more serious than a broken leg? What causes paralysis in most cases of fractured spines? These may be simple questions for some, but do YOU know the correct answer? If not, read the following explanation:

It is a known fact that all the functional power of the human body is generated in the brain and transmitted from the brain to the body by means of the nervous system, the main cable of which is the spinal cord. This cord extends from the base of the brain to the tip of the spine, and in its downward course gives off 32 branches or 31 pairs of spinal nerves. The spinal nerve fibres are branched and rebranched until they divide into thousands of tiny nerves much smaller than a strand of hair, and in this way lead to every part of the body. The path of nerve energy is from the brain to the spine, and then out over the nerves to supply force to the whole human system.

If one or more spinal nerves are pinched either where they leave the brain or where they leave the spine the result is a weakness in the organ or part that should be supplied by the nerves involved. It is by removing this pressure that health and a normal body have been restored to hundreds of sufferers. Why not you? Southern Pacific's "Great Circle Tour"—a wondrous swing around the entire United States—for but a few dollars more than the roundtrip direct route fare to New York City. Summer reduced fares in effect May 22 and good until October 31 make it easily available to you. Greatest of all vacation trips.

From California, down through the gorgeous southwest—Arizona's fascinating places, spectacular Apache Trail, Tucson, Phoenix, Casa Grande Ruins, El Paso, San Antonio, Houston to Texas, with sidetrip from El Paso to Old Mexico at Juarez.

New Orleans, city of romance and old-world atmosphere; then by boat for a five-day cruise, down the Mississippi and up the Atlantic coast to New York (meals and berths included in the fare).

Sidetrips to Washington, D.C., and many other eastern cities, world-famous playgrounds; then into Canada and west, or across New York state to Niagara Falls. Westward again—the Great Lakes, Chicago, Minneapolis and St. Paul, then returning over northern United States

COMMUNITY CHEST REVISION, TO ALLOW MORE MONEY FOR RELIEF WORK, RECOMMENDED

Recommendations that the 1927 budget for the Santa Ana and Tustin Community Chest be revised as to allow a greater percentage of money collected for actual relief work than heretofore were voiced by several directors at a board meeting, held this morning at the Community Chest headquarters, 711 Sycamore street.

According to these recommendations, a greater amount would be given the Salvation Army, or to some centralized agency engaged in the supervision of relief work.

President William H. Spurgeon Jr., presided over the meeting, which was attended by Harry W. Lewis, Alex Brownridge, T. E. Stephenson, Fred Rafferty, Miss Mabel McFadden and Fred C. Blauer, directors.

$2475 Held in Reserve

Roland E. Dye, secretary of the chest organization, reported that to date $27,500 has been distributed to the various agencies, of which sum $2475 has been held in reserve to meet unforeseen expenditures. Of the total distributed, $9350 went to the Y. M. C. A., $4400 to the Y. W. C. A., $4400 to the Boy Scouts, $3200 to the Salvation Army, $2750 to Veterans' Relief Association, $550 to Red Cross, and $275 to the Children's Home society.

Monday, June 7, was set for the annual meeting of the chest organization, at which time officers for the 1926-27 administration year will be elected. President Spurgeon suggested that efforts be made to secure a good attendance and more representation in the election of officers. Coupled with this suggestion, he remarked that there has been some criticism to the effect that subscribers to the fund have no say in the election of the governing board. He called attention to the fact that under the by-laws, the directors of all participating agencies are qualified voters in the chest organization.

Director Lewis proposed that not only the directors of participating agencies, but that all chest workers be invited to the annual meeting. He further suggested that the meeting be a public affair, open to anyone who desires to attend.

Collector Is Appointed

Other business matters taken up included the appointment of a part-time collector and secretary, to assist in collections and prepare campaign material for the 1927 drive.

The greater part of the meeting was given over to discussing the 1927 budget. Blauer informed the directors that lately there has been some criticism as to the proportionate amount set aside for character building activities compared with the sum allowed for actual relief work.

Blauer was supported in a way by Directors Stephenson and Brownridge, who suggested that the Salvation Army be given a larger amount for charity purposes. It was brought out, however, by Stephenson, that the churches in the city are engaged in relief work and that unless there is some centralized control, there is room for duplication and abuse.

Central Body Suggested

In order to insure economy as well as efficiency in handling relief funds, it was suggested that the various churches and associations engaged in relief work organize a centralized body, something on the line of the Associated Charities, in Los Angeles and other cities, with which the chest executives could deal as to budget requirements. The chest, by reason of its type of organization, can deal only with organization; it does not itself distribute charity direct. If such a plan is not feasible, it was proposed that an increased allowance be given the Salvation Army.

EDITOR SPEAKS BEFORE COUNTY EXCHANGE BODY

Speaking by invitation before the Orange County Builders' exchange at Kettner's cafe, last evening, J. P. Baumgartner, editor of The Register, built his talk around the thought of the "house not built with hands, eternal in the heavens" and which, he said, in the form of a temple, dedicated to high ideals, should find firm foundation in every human heart.

He said the men of the building industry could render no finer public service than to improve building standards, both artistic and utilitarian, and that in doing so they would be laying the foundation in their own hearts for that temple counterpart of the "house not built with hands."

Manager Langworthy, of the Los Angeles Builders' exchange, was present and spoke briefly following the introduction and informal installation of the new officers. He made an impressive talk to the effect that the acceptance of office was an acknowledgement of obligation and a promise of performance, as well as the conferring of a compliment and an expression of confidence and esteem.

The retiring president, O. T. Moore, presided at the meeting and the retiring secretary, W. J. Kelley, assisted him in conducting the proceedings.

The new officers for the ensuing year are: Jules Markel, president; W. J. Kelley, vice president; Bill Tway, secretary; Sam Heckart, treasurer; E. A. Noe, O. T. Moore, Wilbur Getty, Norb Lentz, H. A. Lake, Bill Yeager, Walter Wright, directors.

Exceptionally fine music was a part of the delightful program, with Miss Hortense Daniels as soloist, accompanied on the piano by Miss Ruth Frothingham.

Popular Teacher Weds Eminent Divine of Toronto, Canada

UCH interest was created here today
among friends of
Miss Agnes Wright Campbell,
B. A., former teacher of French in Polytechnic high school, by the receipt of announcements of her marriage in Toronto, Canada,
April 12 to the Rev. Marshall Waddell Heslip, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Penetanguishene and Wyebridge, Ontario.

The wedding was a very lovely affair, from descriptions sent to friends here, and took place in the chapel of Knox college at Toronto with the Rev. A. B. Winchester and Professor Thomas Eakin, principal of the college, officiating.

Miss Campbell chose an exquisite creation of lace over white satin for her bridal gown, which was worn with a long tulle veil in Grecian style falling from a chaplet of orange blossoms. Her sole ornament was a rope of pearls once worn by her great-grandmother. She carried a cluster of sweetheart roses showered with lilies of the valley and entered the church on the arm of her cousin, the Rev. W. John Cook, to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March.

Her honor maid, Miss Eleanor Pittle, was gowned in powder blue georgette with a black picturhat, and carried Richmond rose,
Miss Elizabeth Heslip, in a charming bridesmaid frock of embroidered peach georgette with a picturhat, carried buttercup roses. Two small maids, Barbara Heslip, niece of the groom, and Elizabeth Cook, cousin of the bride, were flowers in dainty frocks, one pink, the other blue.

The Rev. Mr. Heslip was assisted by his brother, William Heslip, as best man while a group of young men, Walter McCleary, the Rev.
Donald McQueen, Lavern Waldon
and Louis Fowler, served as ushers.
The nuptial music was rendered by Hubert R. Kemp, a close friend of the groom.

Guests were received by the Rev.
W. John Cook and Mrs. Cook of India, and Professor and Mrs. Eakin of Knox college, in the assembly room where fellow students of the groom had used elaborate decorations of flowers and palms, combined with the college colors of the happy pair.

After the reception when the new
Mr. and Mrs. Heslip were greeted and offered happy wishes, they took their departure for a honeymoon trip. After the first of June they will be at home to their friends at The Manse in Penetanguishene, Ontario.

While in this city, Miss Campbell made hosts of friends by her charming personality. Aside from her school work, she was known for her interest in church matters and for three years was county recruit superintendent for the Christian Endeavor. She and her mother, the late Mrs. Cecelia A. Campbell, had an attractive home at 211 South
Ross street.

Two Excellent Talks
Are Given Before
Woman's Club

YESTERDAY'S meeting of the Santa Ana Woman's club was made a particularly happy one by the fact that Mrs. Asa Vander-mast extended the hospitality of her beautiful home on South Birch street, and made the occasion a pleasant social function following the usual business discussions and program.

Magnificent roses and gladioli in tall crystal vases, low bowls of other variegated flowers and the soft light of floor lamps, lent a festive air to the scene. The business session opened with the president, Mrs. Walter Moore, in the chair. Among matters arising before the program features was the acceptance to membership of Mrs. W. H. Kuhn, the reading of a letter from Mrs. Sarah Griffin in appreciation of the club's making her an honorary member, and informal reports of the recent convention at Anaheim, given by the president, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. C. T. Wells, Mrs. Frank E. Mrs. Walter Myers, Mrs. Henry Diers, Mrs. George Miles, and others. The club was represented by 23 members attending the session.

Mrs. Marian Brett and Mrs. R. Ruth Tiffany had charge of the program on Child Protection Laws, Mrs. Brett speaking on Child Welfare and Mrs. Tiffany on Federal Laws Pertaining to Children. Among interesting facts brought out by the informative paper prepared by Mrs. Brett was the fact that the first children's bureau was established in 1912, in order to study and settle the problems of childhood, Julia Lathrop being a prime mover in the venture. So valuable was the work considered that the country has been quick to raise funds for the maintenance of the bureau and the few thousands of dollars of the original budget have now become $1,054,000.

Subjects considered by the bureau include child welfare, delinquency, health, general protection of the mother and children and countless other phases of the national life as pertaining to children. Every state in the union has its own legislation that pertains to child labor not being standard since different labor conditions prevail in different states.

It is highly important to protect the children," stated Mrs. Brett, "since they form one-third of the total population of the country, and the great object of the Child Labor commission is the enforcement of laws governing child labor." The welfare work, she stated, was largely the outgrowth of the World war when it was seen that conservation of youth was necessary. The census of 1920 showed that one-twelfth of the child population figured as wage earners.

Night schools, compulsory education laws and part-time school were cited as some of the results and Mrs. Brett closed her paper with the statement that a standard for age and employment was worked out, and while not adopted by all the states, yet every state has compulsory education laws.

But they are agreed that if there is any way for people to be happy though married in Hollywood, it is by working hard and continuously, each at his or her own calling.

"The trouble with most Hollywood families that get into scandals," says Mrs. Marshall, "is that either the husband or the wife is not in the film business or any other business. And for the stay-at-home wife or husband, Hollywood is about the dullest spot in the world."

"No wonder women who have nothing to do while their husbands

are on the lots get into mischief,

and vice versa."

The Marshall family is too busy to disagree seriously, she says. Tully is always occupied, playing important character roles for various companies. And Marion is a film producer in her own right.

They are in Hollywood because Mr. Marshall wanted his wife to have her chance, when ten years ago, the De Mille's asked her to come to the coast as editorial director for them.

Mrs. Tiffany then went into details of the fluctuations of law and the conditions arising from it, which reached the point that in 1919 there was a ten per cent tax on profits of the work of children.

The making of such a law and the subsequent repealing have occupied our law-makers until at the present, there is no sign of a federal law for the protection of our children.

The two papers were followed by a discussion in which many members took part, stating their views on the subject. Later in the roll call conducted by the secretary, Mrs. William Whitehead, the club women related interesting current events.

A friendly interval followed during which the members and guests chatted of various interests and enjoyed the refreshments of delicious cake and coffee which were served by Mrs. Vandermast, assisted by Mrs. Henry Diers and Mrs. Walter Myers.

AN AMERICAN LOVE-STORY IS THAT OF THE MARSHALLS

Many Friends Attend
Native Daughters' First Party

ARKED by a gratifying success, the first party which the recently organized parlor of Native Daughters sponsored yesterday in K. C. hall, was one of the most pleasant affairs of the spring and attended by scores of guests.

The Daughters had spared no pains to make the afternoon pleasant and the hall a charming spot in which to greet their guests. Every lovely flower that blossoms in a California spring, was evident in the wealth of floral decorations arranged by the capable hands of Miss Martha Ritchey and her corps of assistants of the flower committee.

Playing began at 2:30 o'clock, with about fifty tables required to accommodate the guests, who were fairly evenly divided between bridge and 500 adherents. Mrs. Gilbert P. Campbell, chairman of general arrangements, her committee heads and their assistants, served as hostesses, and aided in promoting the friendly spirit of the afternoon. Punch and wafers were served throughout the afternoon and guests strolled to the attractive table between the intervals of playing, to be refreshed with the cooling drink.

Merchants had been most generous in promoting the success of the party, and prizes donated by the Higgins Furniture company of Orange, the McCune Furniture company, White Cross and Mater Drug stores of Santa Ana, were awarded together with others given by members of the Parlor.

In bridge, the first prize, a davenport end table, went to Mrs. Clare Johnston while a hand painted handkerchief was low prize and won by Mrs. W. C. McFarland of Placentia. Mrs. Clayhurst of Garden Grove won a rose-bud lamp
as first prize in 500 while the handkerchief as low prize, went to Mrs.
Caster.

Other attractive gifts were awarded as surprise features and went to Mrs. Seba, Mrs. Archie Herr and Mrs. Maurice A. Yarnell. The Parlor will have a nice sum to add to its treasury as a result of the party.

Retired U. S. Marshall, 86 Years Old, Says He Takes Black-Draught to Help Keep Himself in Good Shape

Cleveland, Texas.—"I have been using Black-Draught for about forty years—have used it so long until when I go in the drug store they usually ask me if it is Black-Draught I want, and it usually is," says Col. W. A. Roark, a retired U. S. marshal and timber land owner, residing here.

"I believe Black-Draught is the best system-cleaner made. I am now 86 years old and feel like 40."

"I keep myself in shape with Black-Draught."

"If I let myself get constipated, my back aches. I get a bad, dull feeling in my head, and when I found that Black-Draught would relieve all this, I take it in time and do not suffer the trouble any more."

"I gladly recommend Black-Draught to friends, and as for myself, I am absolutely satisfied that it can't be beat for indigestion."

BRITAIN LACKS EFFICIENCY IN HER INDUSTRIES

By J. W. T. MASON (Copyright, 1926, by United Press)

NEW YORK, May 5.—Great Britain will never settle her recurring strike crises until American methods of efficiency in production and American standards of hard work and high wages are accepted by British capital and labor.

Threats to the up industry in the United Kingdom are signs of a revolt against low living conditions, dangerously disquieting only because the British have not yet harmonized relations between employers and employees.

The cause of the industrial unrest of the British is symbolized by the conditions in the coal industry. It costs two to three times as much to mine coal in Great Britain as it does in the United States. Anti-quated methods, limit of output imposed on the miners, working of difficult mines that ought to be abandoned, and over-capitalization are some of the reasons.

Advantage of Modern Methods

The adoption of efficiency methods would permit the coal to be mined by scarcely more than half the present number of miners.

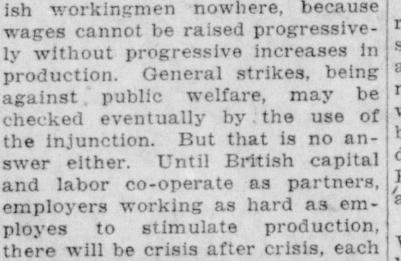

But the miners object to any new production system that might reduce their number, while private capital cannot be found to modernize the mines, through fear of the government eventually taking over the coal fields at a low capital valuation. Employers and employees are both backing away from efficiency in production.

The American spirit of capital and labor coming together, each realizing its dependence on the other and each working for a fair division of profits, is little known in Great Britain. High wages are not begrimed an American workingman if he is a good producer. But old-fashioned class ideas still prevail in British industry and employers in many instances believe low wages are a good thing and workingmen should be content with their humble lot.

British workingmen tend to encourage that idea, for if they can make enough by three days' labor per week to support themselves, large numbers of them want to make the rest of the week a holiday.

The American spirit of earning more by steady production under constantly improving conditions has not won its way in Great Britain. Nevertheless, there are signs that the British are beginning to realize that the new world holds the secret of their economic salvation. Numerous investigations into the reasons for high American wages and the high standards of living of American workers have been made by Britishers in the last 12 months and are still continuing. How the investigators must apply their findings to Great Britain's own peculiar conditions is part of their problem.

General strikes will get the British workingmen nowhere, because wages cannot be raised progressively without progressive increases in production. General strikes, being against public welfare, may be checked eventually by the use of the injunction. But that is no answer either. Until British capital and labor co-operate as partners, employers working as hard as employees to stimulate production, there will be crisis after crisis, each leaving increasing discontent behind. The only way for Great Britain to divide her property and yet keep everybody prosperous is the American way of increasing production per annum.

Mrs. F. J. English, Santa Ana route No. 3, suffered a broken nose, several facial cuts and bruises about the body at 7:30 o'clock last night, when the automobile, in which she was riding with her husband, collided with a machine driven by Miss Irene Blower, 1720 Poinsettia street, at Baker street and Washington avenue.

Miss Blower was driving west on Washington avenue and the English machine was traveling north on Baker street. They collided at the intersection.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Paul and baby, riding in the Blower car, escaped injury, as did Mr. English, in the other machine.

Mrs. English was taken to the Santa Ana Valley hospital, where her injuries were given medical attention. She later was removed to her home.

No arrests were made.

Methodists Invite Liberals to Quit

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 5.—Methodist laymen and preachers who do not believe in a living personal God and the divinity of Jesus Christ and the virgin birth, were invited out of the church today by the college of bishops.

The recommendation that "the stain be taken out of the fabric" was included in the bishops' address at the quadrennial conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, now in session here.

The address was read by Bishop Collins Denny, of Richmond, Va. It gives the opinions and recommendations of the 14 southern bishops.

Crew On Steamer
Threatens Mutiny

NEW YORK, May 5.—Forty-six members of the engine crew of the White Star liner Arabic staged a near mutiny as that vessel left its pier for England today. Three officers stood at a companionway and refused to allow the "black gang" of oilers and wipers to pass from the ship. Capt. John Davies appeared in time to prevent an incipient riot and when the Arabic steamed down the Hudson the would-be deserters were still standing in a little group on the boat deck, apparently having refused to return to their posts.

The address was read by Bishop Collins Denny, of Richmond, Va. It gives the opinions and recommendations of the 14 southern bishops.

SEEKS OFFICE

Orange county friends of Horace Fine, veteran Santa Ana newspaperman, today were interested in the announcement of his candidacy for the office of county treasurer at the primary election, to be held August 31. Although Fine has been identified, in a semi-official way, with improvement projects in Orange county for practically all of the 37 years he has worked as a newspaper man, his friends pointed out that election to the office of county treasurer is the first political favor he has ever requested at the hands of his acquaintances.

In entering the campaign for the office, Fine made it clear that he has no criticism to make of his opponents, County Treasurer J. C. Joplin and James Livesey sr. According to his announcement of candidacy, he will base his claim for the support of the voters upon his long experience and close knowledge of public affairs in the county and the years of work in quasi-official capacities.

Fine has attended practically every meeting of the Orange County Associated Chambers of Commerce since the formation of the organization, his friends said, and, according to these spokesmen for him, he always has been prodigal of his energy and talents in pushing all movements for the greatest good to the greatest number.

Fine probably is as well known in Santa Ana as any other man, it is claimed. He is a member of the Kiwanis club and attends meetings of other civic organizations in his capacity as reporter. He has extensive property holdings in this city. He is associated in these holdings with his brother, Walter Fine.

The nestor of Orange county newspaper reporters expects to spend considerable time this summer in campaigning, he announced today.

William N. Martin was born Jan.
7, 1858, at Ottumwa, Ia., and died
May 2, 1926, in his home, 517 South Flower street, Santa Ana, Calif., at the age of 68 years, three months and 26 days.

In 1880, at the age of 24 years, he was married to Miss Ella Gleason, in Redook, Ia., and to this union was born seven children, four girls,
Mrs. Laura Kent, Santa Ana; Mrs.
Myrtle Goff, Laguna Beach; Mrs.
Mina Tubbs (deceased) and Mrs.
Alto Stambaugh, Los Angeles, and three boys, Ray, (deceased), Ernest, of Laguna Beach, and Floyd, Santa Ana. Mr. Martin also leaves his wife and 17 grandchildren.

In the earlier part of his life Mr.
Martin was engaged in agricultural work in the state of Nebraska, but later and for 14 years was the miller of the Fullerton Roller Flour mills. Since coming to California in 1906, he had been engaged in the business of building and contracting.

Mr. Martin lived a careful, patient, sincere and Christian life. He was a member of the Men's Community Bible class, of Santa Ana.

The manner in which he lived and the words of his teaching gained and held him many friends. From the earliest of his Christian career to the day God called him from his work, he never faltered, leaving in his pathway none but those thoughts that tended to edify.

Sidney G. Simpson was born in Cambridge, Indiana, December 3, 1847.
She was united in marriage March 7, 1867, to Robert S. Morse, in Indianapolis, Indiana, and to this union ten children were born, two dying in infancy.

Mother Morse passed away on April 27, 1916, at 3:30 a.m., her husband having preceded her in death on September 4, 1915. She is survived by two sons and six daughters, 14 grandchildren and nine great grandchildren; also a brother, Oliver Simpson, and a sister, Elizabeth Simpson, of Indianapolis, Indiana.

The funeral services were conducted at the Smith & Tuthill Chapel,
May 3rd, at 2 p.m. The Rev. F.
Porter, pastor of the Christian church conducting the services. Interment was in Fairhaven cemetery.

All the children, twelve of the grandchildren and several of the great grandchildren were present at the services.

The children are: Thomas O.
Morse, Berkeley, California; Hattie
M. Haghorn and Alice L. Thompson, Santa Ana; Anna Wilson, Bellflower; Levina E. Stambaugh, Los Angeles; Carrie E. Morse, at home;
Charles W. Morse and Zarrah L.
Ely, Long Beach.

Deceased came to Santa Ana with her husband August, 1876, and in 1878 purchased the present home
site at Fifth and Garsney streets, where the three youngest children were born.

She united with the Christian church when sixteen years of age and was a charter member of the

Sowing of Seed In Proper Way Very Essential

Sowing seed outdoors, evenly and thinly is a real art acquired only after considerable practice. The knack, however, is gained by trying out a few packets. The trick is in holding the packet flat between the thumb and second finger, with the forefinger held above it in a position to tap the packet regularly and just sufficiently to cause the seed to feed out. When the packet is opened the flap is creased to make a little trough down the center through which the seed, under the gentle tapping of the forefinger, will trickle slowly forth so that it is possible to sow it reasonably thinly.

More seed is wasted by thick
sowing than in any other manner for when the plants come up in thick tufts from seed dropped in a mass only a very few of them have a chance to grow.

Sow seed as a general rule with a covering equal to twice its thickness. The finer the seed the less the covering of earth until the finest and dust-like need only to be sprinkled upon the surface and pressed in. Vegetable seed, fortunately, is, for the most part, on the coarse side and can be sown much more easily than flower seeds, many of which are powder fine.

The ground having been spaded and worked to a fine tilth, make the rows for the seed run north and south so far as practicable as a matter of securing an even division of sunlight. Make the rows with the point of the hoe or with a plant label for the smaller ones or some other convenient pointed instrument, such as the big blade of a jackknife, and then scatter the seed. The depth of the row for the seed is determined by the side of the seed. Thin sowing will do away with considerable thinning after the seed is up.

Cover the seeds and tamp the earth firmly over them. This aids in germination by bringing seeds and moist earth into close contact at the start. If covered with powdery earth it will be necessary to wait for a rain to pound the soil and make the contact.

All of the early garden seeds are now to go into the open ground and transplanting of others will be the order of the day.

LIVELY SESSION OF CALIFORNIA
P.-T. A. LOOMS

With matters relating to juvenile delinquency, suppression of obscene and questionable literature, educational facilities for crippled children, the Tijuana border closing, and similar measures, coming before the assembled delegates, the state convention of the California Congress of Parents and Teachers, to be held at San Bernardino, May 25 to 29, promises to be the most important in the history of the organization. It was stated today by Mrs. J. Edmund Snow, president of the fourth district (Orange county) P.-T. A.

According to Mrs. Snow, the various committees of the state organization have been engaged in active research and investigation work the results of which will be submitted to the convention in their respective reports. It is expected that spirited discussion will center about some of the resolutions to be introduced on the floor, touching upon certain phases of child welfare. It was added.

Special efforts are being made by officers of the various local associations in the district to insure a record attendance from the fourth district. To that end, arrangements have been made with the bus companies for the operation of special stages from Orange county points to San Bernardino, it was stated.

NETHERLANDS SCHEME FOR CHILD WELFARE ATTRACTS
INTEREST IN LOCAL P.-T. A.

Discussed with much interest in local P.-T. A. circles is a new scheme for child welfare, in the wide application of the term, now being tried out in Amsterdam, the principal city of The Netherlands. According to a bulletin published in the Parent-Teacher, the official organ of the California Congress of Parents and Teachers, in that city there has been instituted and organized a children's police force, empowered to take preventive measures.

The scheme tried out in Holland, the bulletin states, is the direct development of a resolution unanimously adopted at the International Congress for Child Welfare Work, in 1921, stating the need for such a force. The Netherlands, it is pointed out, is the only country which took definite action, although the trend toward aid and protection of juveniles on the part of the police and law-enforcing agencies seems universal.

Special Judges for Youths.

Selection of officials who by training, experience, and temperament are fitted to deal with young people, is the outstanding feature of the organization. Another feature is the appointment of special magistrates to pass on all juvenile cases. These judges are given considerable latitude in order that each case may be tried on its merits, taking cognizance of all surrounding circumstances, and, further, to the end that treatment calculated to bring desired results may be ordered for the juvenile delinquent.

The protective side of the force's activities is three-fold—protection of the child, against itself, against those in charge of him, and against the dangers he may meet in his social life. This phase of the work includes assistance by advice to parents who complain of their children's conduct; prevention of any serious negligence in care of a child; placing children whose guardianship is inadequate in suitable institutions; help to schools in truancy cases; collection of information and advising magistrates; supervision of children in public resorts, including movie shows and dance halls; tracing of runaway children and maintenance of measures taken in their interest.

Women Are Officers.

The force as organized, the bulletin states, includes several women officers. The headquarters is a large building, furnished with none of the formality of a "police station" and made to look more like a comfortable bureau of advice. Both men and women officers wear plain clothes, but the men have all served some years in the ordinary force, and the women, who have been chosen for their previous experience among children, must take at least a year's police training.

The inspectors and inspectresses have a large field of work in gaining the confidence of young people and parents in difficult cases and directing them toward suitable organizations to assist them. Both educational and psychiatric advice are made available by the appropriate authorities, the bulletin adds.

Another duty that falls on the children's police is the gathering of information for the magistrates for each juvenile case must be accompanied by a report setting forth the upbringing, mental and physical development, conduct, and circumstances of the delinquent, as well as of members of the household.

Supervision on Streets.

The children's police, the bulletin goes on to say, is also charged with the supervision of juveniles on streets, at railway stations, motion picture theaters and dance halls.

Co-operation of all authorities, organizations and social welfare agencies interested in juvenile welfare work is made possible by a commission, on which are represented the public relief boards, the educational authorities, the medical and sanitary services, juvenile police authorities, and those semi-official social welfare agencies which devote their efforts to juveniles, either normal or delinquent.

It is claimed in P.-T. A. circles that the recently adopted Amsterdam system offers a really consistently qualified service toward stopping at its source the steady supply of delinquents for juvenile courts and detention homes.

The Colorado
River Project

By J. P. Baumgartner

SIXTH (AND LAST) ARTICLE
MOUNTAINS OF MUD! Mountains of mud mounting ever higher and higher, ever widening out at the base, ever bulging out at the sides. Man-made, machine-made mountains of mud.

Many men and many machines and much money, over and over and over, if not quite everlasting, on the job.

Steam dredgers, steam shovels, steam plows, steam ditch-diggers, specially designed swinging scoops and buckets operated by steam or gasoline engines, specially designed and ingeniously rigged-up and curiously hooked-up traction engines always sucking and swinging and dipping and rooting and chugging.

Thus the fight of the farmers at Blythe and in the Imperial valley goes on—the fight to keep the irrigation canals and ditches open, so the water can flow in from the Colorado river, to prevent the silt deposited by the river water from burying them.

Do you get the picture?

Colorado river water is about ten per cent silt—solid earth. Every acre-foot of water brought into the Palo Verde valley or Imperial valley carries with it over an acre-inch of silt.

Of course not all of this silt is deposited into the canals and ditches; some of it is spread upon the irrigated lands, and slowly but surely builds them up, and also fertilizes them; but most of it is left in the canals and ditches, and must be removed.

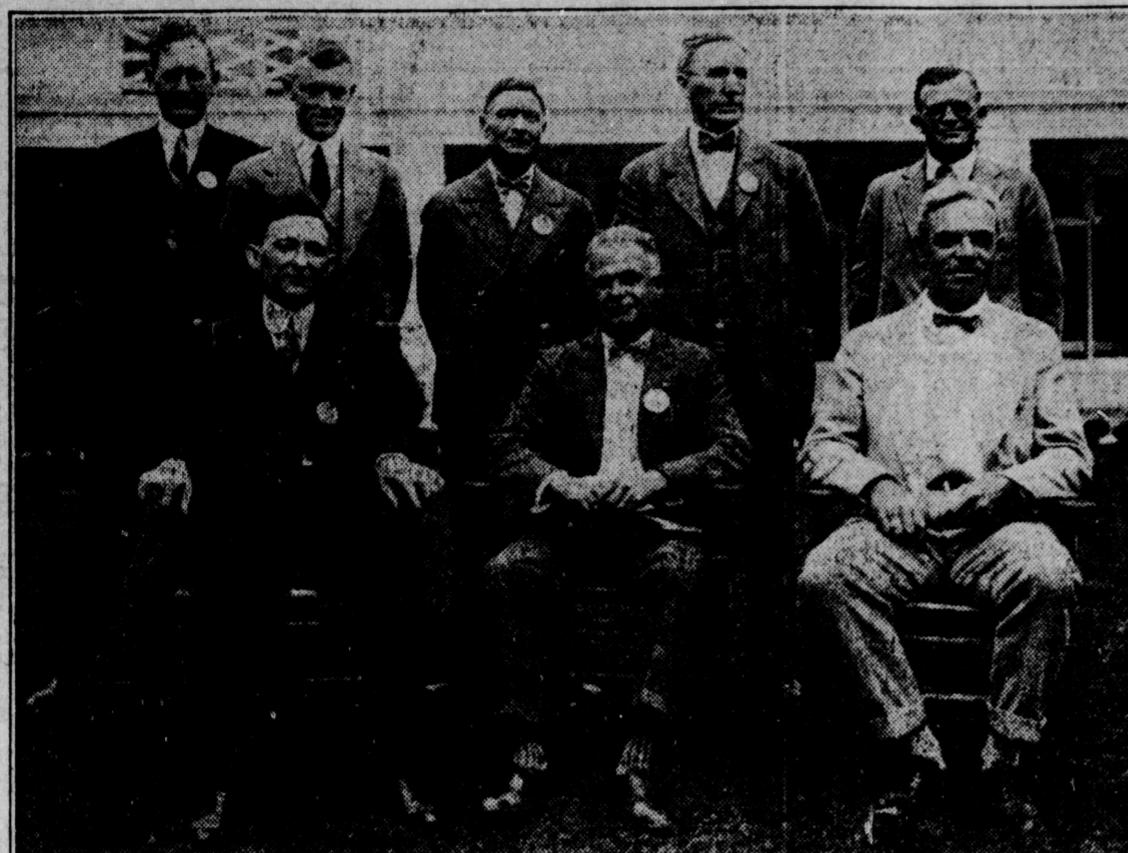

NOW IT is plain to be seen that the higher and broader the mountains of mud alongside the canals and ditches becomes, the more difficult and expensive it becomes to keep the waterways open and operable. And it is equally plain to be seen that it is only a question of time when the expense will become prohibitive; only a question of longer time when it will be a physical impossibility to keep the waterways open.

Here, then, in a long-range view, is one of the big benefits of the Boulder dam project—one that is not given its due importance and prominence in discussion and consideration of the project.

With the full flow of the river held in check and released as needed, nearly all of the silt will be precipitated in the reservoir and the water will come out comparatively clear. And the reservoir will be so vast in area and so deep that it will keep the old Colorado busy 200 years to fill it with silt.

It is right, of course, to place emphasis on the flood menace; it is imminent, it involves life as well as property, it has its dramatic aspect, and therefore appeals to the imagination. But it is not so inevitable as the menace of the mountains of mud. Flood may be averted. It is possible, but perhaps not economically practicable, to build levees that will hold the river in its channel or force it to find its way to the Gulf without inundating the Imperial valley. But the mount-

BOYS STAGE REGULAR CIRCUS AND CHARGE ADMISSION AND HAVE CLOWNS 'N EVERYTHING

Hey, Skinnay!

Why didn'tcha go to the circus? All the fellers wuz there—an' their dads too. Gee, it was fun—why didn'tcha go?

How come you didn't know about? And they sold popcorn and soda pop, too—just like a regular circus.

Teachers at Circus.

All the teachers from Lincoln school were there—Miss Linda Paul, the principal, and all the rest. And everyone of the dads came—and paid their way in, too.

Don't you know who the boys are, Skinnay? Why they're Paul Hales at whose barn it was, and Donald Lentz and Joe Knox and Bill Spurgeon, you know his granddad settled Santa Ana, my teacher said, and DeMont Galbraith and Hubert Dale Jr. (his pa is at the Dale hardware) and Claude Owens, whose pa has 'lectric automobiles, and John Nicholas and Murrie Patton, (his dad's a dentist) and Bud Hood and Robert Tannebaum. I guess that's all, but gee they did have fun—regular circus!

Kids Made $6.20.

Why do you know, the kids made $6.20 out of it, honest they did! Can you beat that? You see, they charged the big folks 10 cents, but all the kids got in for only three.

I saved my pennies for two days, I and I got to go. And they had a fat woman—gee, she was fat! I hardly knew it was one of the boys. And the clowns—oh boy! I never saw clowns so funny! And they had sleight-of-hand tricks and some kids did lots of tumbling acts just exactly like at the circus—anyway.

I wish you could have seen the collection of curios! Donald Lentz borrowed all the badges that his granddad Langley (you know, Judge E. T. Langley) had ever collected when he went to G. A. R. conventions and things like that. And they had some Boy Scout things, honest I'll bet there isn't a scout in the city that could tie better knots than they had. And they had a bridge they built once for a Scout test. And you never saw such a lot of guns and things as they had.

Railts Rich Milk.

Outgoing Executive Is Presented with Beautiful Watch Charm

Santa Ana Rotary club began a new year yesterday. When Fred C. Rowland, the club's new president, received the gavel from Terry E. Stephenson, outgoing president.

Previous to the installation, the Rotarians had a few minutes of hilarity, when Rowland, who is a walnut grower, was initiated into the Order of the Nut. A half-coconut was placed upon his head by Elmer Jahraus, who wittily declared Rowland to be ruler of the order.

The ceremonies of installation were in charge of the past presidents of the club, Mac Q. Robbins, William H. Spurgeon, Jack C. Hayden, Earl S. Morrow and Dr. M. A. Patton. The outgoing president was presented with a beautiful watch charm. Dr. Patton presided.

Don't you know who the boys are, Skinnay? Why they're Paul Hales at whose barn it was, and Donald Lentz and Joe Knox and Bill Spurgeon, you know his granddad settled Santa Ana, my teacher said, and DeMont Galbraith and Hubert Dale Jr. (his pa is at the Dale hardware) and Claude Owens, whose pa has 'lectric automobiles, and John Nicholas and Murrie Patton, (his dad's a dentist) and Bud Hood and Robert Tannebaum. STAGE AND SCREEN

Some of the headliners on the current Yost theater vaudeville program. Left to right, they are the two Aeroplane girls, Alfred Latell and Mao and Miss Daley.

WEST COAST-WALKER
"The Exquisite Sinner," opens a two day engagement today at West Coast-Walker theater.

Here's one of the brightest and most amusing comedies the screen has had to offer in many months. It is packed with action, love and unusual situations and is full of color and charm from start to finish. The film relates in stirring fashion the adventures of a highly temperamental artist convalescing in France, who runs away with a band of gypsies and overturns conventions generally in riotous and highly spectacular fashion.

Conrad Nagel, one of the most popular leading men the industry has ever known, has found his best role in this picture. As the high strung artist going rapidly to bad in search of his good, he presents a portrait at once authentically human and intensely comic.

Renee Adoree, whose amazingly skillful work in "The Big Parade" has recently brought her into the very front rank of film favorites, has been perfectly cast in this picture. Miss Adoree plays with true fire and abandon in this irresistible comedy.

Five acts of good vaudeville round out a bill that makes a splendid evening's entertainment.

WEST END THEATER

Proving a winner from the opening scenes, "Red Dice," a rum-running picture starring Rod LaRocque and featuring Marguerite De La Motte as leading woman, is showing at the West End theater. This is decidedly a strong melodramatic picture relieved by whole-some comedy, the latter supplied by two gunmen in the employ of the chief of the bootleg ring. The story is redolent of tragedy and dramatic action following the action of LaRocque as a wearied veteran in insuring his life in favor of the big rum runner for $100,000 and agreeing to kill himself within one year. This grousing bargain provokes much trouble for all concerned and how the tragedy is averted makes a decidedly interesting story. Miss De La Motte is an excellent foil to Mr. LaRocque, while the supporting players among whom are Gustave Van Seyffertz, Walter Long, Ray Haller, Edythe York and Alan Brooks, proved quite capable in their portrayals of exciting roles.

YOST THEATER

A laugh for young and old is contained in Gordon Eldrid and company's farcical skit, "Tit for Tat," at the Yost theater. Eldrid is one of vaudeville's best known authors, having written special material for others, besides several for himself. "Tit for Tat" is his latest and abounds with laughable situations and snappy dialogue. His company consists of three young women.

Mabel Harper is known as "the funbeam of vaudeville." She has a fund of humorous stories and songs which were especially written to her measure. This comedienne is assisted at the piano by Ethel Fitzpatrick, a soprano singer of well-balled songs.

Personally attractive, the Aeroplane girls will be viewed in an up-to-the-minute sensation. Attired in unique costumes which display their charms to advantage, these two feminine dare-devils are to stage a thrilling performance on whirling trapezes. By a mechanical apparatus they are to be hurtled through space at a high rate of speed, all the while performing a series of thrilling exploits.

Comedy and spectacular roller skating will be offered by Mac and Daley, a duo of exceptional artists. They are dressed in snappy collegiate outfits, and introduce several innovations on the ball bearings with the feature being a sensational tub-swivel spin.

A tale as warm and tender as sunlight in Spain is the photoplay "The Girl From Montmartre," showing at the Yost.

Barbara La Marr, the screen's most exotic and charming actress, portrays the role of the Spanish dancer. The necessary wooling is most satisfactorily effected by Lewis Stone. Robert Ellis, William Eugene, Bobby Mack and Mathilde Comont comprise a cast capable supporting cast.

SPRINGDALE

SPRINGDALE, May 5.—Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Graham and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Young enjoyed a visit Sunday to the Watson ostrich farm at South Pasadena. In the evening they motored to Long Beach, where they were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Graham's son, Riley Graham.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hand, Mr. and Mrs. William Cozard Jr., Mrs. L. Moldal and Leonard Bentley, of this place, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Applebury, of Garden Grove, spent Saturday evening grunion hunting at Sunset Beach.

Robert and Floyd Teneycke are absent from school as the result of an eye trouble, which seems quite prevalent in this section.

Mrs. J. Hurst has been ill with a severe attack of la grippe this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Due motored into Los Angeles Sunday to visit relatives. In their absence Mrs. Due's nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Louis St. John, arrived from Los Angeles. They remained for a visit with the younger members of the Due family, who were at home.

Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Roberson had as Sunday visitors in their home, Mrs. E. A. Farmer, of Santa Ana, and her nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jenkins, of Los Angeles. Mrs. Farmer had the misfortune recently to fall while going down the steps of the Santa Ana library and broke several of her ribs. Mrs. Jenkins has been spending several days assisting her aunt.

A picnic party composed of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Crane, Miss Floete Crane, S. J. Crane, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Wenzel and family, Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Wenzel and family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Graham and son, Alvin Graham, of this place, with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gisler of Greenville, had an enjoyable outing at Laguna Beach on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Cozard Jr. spent Sunday at Garden Grove, where they were dinner guests of Mrs. Cozard's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Apple.

WHY HAIR FALLS OUT

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a 35-cent bottle of Danderine at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub well into the scalp. After a few applications the hair stops coming out.

bury. The same afternoon, Mrs. Cozard's mother, Mrs. L. Moldal, left for Los Angeles in company with her sister, Mrs. J. W. Ball, who motored here to take her to her home for a visit of a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Crane

and daughter, Miss Floete Crane, and son, S. J. Crane, motored Saturday to Pomona, where they celebrated May day with friends.

CITY FIRE AND POLICE POLICY
IS QUESTIONED

Fire Chief John Luxembourger and he was asked, "How come?"

"The call referred to is that letter," said the fire chief, "came to the central station about 2 o'clock in the morning, and I was called out of bed to know what to do about it. Under the rules established by the city trustees for the government of the fire department, I could, and probably should have said, 'we can't answer a call outside of the city limits.' But as this fire was only a short distance outside of the city limits and could be reached with about 750 feet of hose, I told the boys to take the pump and go to it. However, before they could get out of the station, the man who had put in the call for help called up again and said that the fruit stand already had been consumed by the fire so that there was no use coming."

"Everybody knows," continued the chief, "or ought to know, that the city can't give fire protection and fire suppression service to the whole county and that, as it must draw the line, it is the logical thing to draw it at the city limits. However, we do go outside of the city quite frequently and will continue to do so when, in our judgment, it is practical to undertake to render assistance. I am supposed to get the authority of at least one of the city trustees before I send any department apparatus outside of the city limits. This, of course, takes time. So sometimes I take the responsibility of going outside the city without getting any authority to do so from any member of the board of trustees."

Can Organize District

"People anywhere in the county can have fire protection if they want it and are willing to pay for it," said the chief. "There is a law under which they can organize fire protection districts and provide themselves with whatever fire protection apparatus and facilities they may deem expedient to have."

The part of the letter criticizing the police department was taken over to the city hall and shown to Officer Sid Smithwick—City Marshal Claude Rogers was not in the office. Smithwick looked up the records and found that there was no record of the case referred to in the letter.

"All there is to that," said Smithwick, "is that the city marshal's office has no jurisdiction or authority or obligation to render service in the case of theft or other crime committed outside of the city limits. The mere fact that the person from whom an auto is stolen is a resident of the city has no bearing on the case—the point is that the machine must have been stolen while it was in the city."

"When we get a call on a case of theft, committed outside of the city, we have no recourse but to refer the applicant to the sheriff's office. However, we will go anywhere to investigate theft or to recover a machine, no matter how far out of the city, if the machine was stolen inside the city limits and removed therefrom."

WINTERSBURG

WINTERSBURG, May 5.—May day proved a red letter day for the members of Mrs. E. M. Fox's second year beginners' Sunday school class, as their teacher entertained them at a delightful May party at her home during the afternoon hours. A May pole in the yard greeted the children upon their arrival at the Fox home and about this they spent a part of the afternoon and other games filled the hours to overflowing with happiness for the 10 class members.

Late in the afternoon, Mrs. Fox invited her small guests into the dining room, where refreshments of ice cream and wafers were served at a table pretty in its decorations of yellow, the handiwork of Bonnely Fox and June Slater, who assisted Mrs. Fox.

Present at the class party were: Lucille Baker, Opal DeBuse, Leona Peters, Juanita Wentzel, Effie Kawawyer, Dorothy Breeding, Linnie and Lillie Sizer, Ross Cowling and Harold Schultz. Mrs. Fox plans to hold a party for the children once a month.

The congregation of the Wintersburg Methodist church greeted on Sunday evening, Mrs. D. D. Dundas, of Baldwin Park, wife of a former local pastor. Mrs. Dundas, an ordained minister, spoke at the church in the interest of the Methodist Junior Queen Esther Circle, which sponsored the program for Sunday evening. A solo by Mrs. Elmer Turner, "Nearer My God," and an instrumental solo, "Harp at Midnight," by June Slater, were enjoyed.

Announcement was made that Mr. Douglas, former Y. M. C. A. secretary of Orange county, and at present a member of the Fullerton high school faculty, would be the speaker at next Sunday evening's service. Mother's day service will be observed at 11 o'clock.

Mrs. Dundas, while in Wintersburg, was the house guest of Mrs. Lillie Shaefer Moore. Monday morning, the two visited among Mrs. Dundas' old friends in the neighborhood. In the afternoon Mrs. Dundas left for Orange, to be present at a Queen Esther banquet.

Mrs. J. Scott Willmarth is ill at her home.

At the school board meeting, which was held Saturday evening at the home of one of the trustees, E. M. Fox, Mr. Fox was elected president, while Don McMillan was elected as clerk of the board to succeed W. F. Slater. No other business was transacted.

Miss Marie Barthole and Miss Sophie Barthole spent the weekend visiting friends at Riverside.

On Friday evening, the Junior Queen Esther Circle will meet with Miss Geraldine Gardner at her home for the regular monthly meeting. A pot-luck supper will, as usual, be a pleasant feature of the occasion.

The Colorado
River Project

By J. P. Baumgartner

in mountains of mud are as irresistible as the lava flow from Vesuvius.

FROM BLYTHE, we went to El Centro. Coming out of Blythe, in an easterly direction, we passed through a mesa, apparently about ten or twelve miles square, of fine level land, all of which, Engineer Bayley said, could be irrigated from the proposed aqueduct. He said that water could be furnished to this 100,000 or more square miles of land at very little cost—just the cost that would accrue from building a short section of aqueduct a little larger and from the irrigation project's share of the first short lift of the water from the river's level to the level of the mesa.

We saw other large bodies of land in Nevada and Arizona and California, all comparatively close to the river, that could be economically irrigated from the waters that would be stored by a dam at Boulder canyon or Black canyon, but not from the aqueduct. With the exception of the mesa east of Blythe, it is probable that there will be no irrigation with waters carried by the aqueduct, because the pumping and tunnelling necessary will make the water cost too much. However, the supplying of cities in the coast area with domestic water may release some water for irrigation—at least it will obviate the necessity of the cities, as they grow, taking irrigating water away from the land for domestic uses.

AFTER SPENDING the night at El Centro, we drove to Yuma and looked over the Laguna dam and the Yuma reclamation project.

The Laguna dam, about ten miles above the city of Yuma, is not a storage dam—simply a low check-dam to raise the water to a higher level than the natural level, so as to get the water out on river bottom lands in California and Arizona.

The water is taken out on the California side and carried down to Yuma, irrigating lands along the line of the canal. Just opposite the city of Yuma the canal pours the water into a giant siphon, which carries it under the river and delivers it into the canal on the Arizona side. The canal carries the water in a southerly direction and delivers it to the river bottom lands in Arizona, opposite the intake of the Imperial irrigation district.

At this intake, the Imperial irrigation district maintains a big construction and operation camp. Two dredgers are engaged from five to eight months of the year in sucking silt out of the main canal and pouring it back into the river through pipelines laid across the peninsula formed by the canal on one side and the river on the other.

The Imperial irrigation district has a big rock quarry from which it gets rock for its flood protection levee, which extends nearly eighty miles down the river into Mexico. It operates over sixty miles of railroad, mainly for the purpose of maintaining its flood protection levee, which must be built higher and higher each year as the bed of the river is raised by silt deposits.

W COURSE, as indicated in the opening paragraph of this article, the district maintains numerous steam shovels and scoops and plows and other implements and machines for keeping its canals and laterals free from silt, and individual farmers, in like manner, take care of the ditches on their own lands.

W. C. Jerome, who was with our party and who, with his brother Ben, farms 160 acres of land near Holtville, told me that it costs the Imperial valley farmers (district and individual expense) over a million dollars a year to keep their canals and ditches in operable condition. Later I heard the superintendent on the irrigation district say the cost is nearer two million dollars.

The Imperial irrigation district covers 400,000 acres of land, and its main canal carries from 4000 to 5000 second-feet of water with which to irrigate that land and provide domestic water for 60,000 people.

WITHIN LESS than half a mile from the intake the main canal of the Imperial irrigation district passes into Mexico, so that the Imperial valley receives all the water for irrigating its 400,000 acres of land by sufferance of a foreign country. That is one of the big reasons for the proposed "All American canal."

There are no treaties between the United States and Mexico providing for the use of these waters for irrigation or domestic purposes. Therefore, when the water which is diverted in California crosses the international line into Mexico all jurisdiction thereof is completely lost. To make possible the irrigation of Imperial valley a Mexican corporation was formed which, in 1904, obtained a concession from Mexico, giving it the right to receive the water at the international line and reconvey the same back into the United States, provided that "enough shall be used to irrigate."

Mrs. J. Scott Willmarth is ill at her home.

At the school board meeting, which was held Saturday evening at the home of one of the trustees, E. M. Fox, Mr. Fox was elected president, while Don McMillan was elected as clerk of the board to succeed W. F. Slater. No other business was transacted.

Miss Marie Barthole and Miss Sophie Barthole spent the weekend visiting friends at Riverside.

gate the lands susceptible of irrigation in Lower California with the water carried through the canal or canals without in any case the amount of water used exceeding one-half of the volume of water passing through said canals."

While this instrument is commonly referred to as a concession, and which it may properly be, in effect, it is nothing more than a contract, for a violation of which the Mexican corporation, the stock of which is held by the directors of the Imperial Irrigation District, would have a claim against the Mexican government for damages. The corporation is chartered under the Mexican laws and is prohibited from complaining to the government of the United States against any treatment or wrong done it by the Mexican government. In other words, here is a community of 60,000 people and property values of over $100,000,000 wholly dependent upon the good faith of Mexico for its existence.

Further important announcements concerning additional features acts for the program Monday night will be made tomorrow, it was declared by those in charge of the arrangements for the event.

FARM NEWS FROM EVERYWHERE

CORN BORER IS BIG MENACE TO NATION'S CROP

States Unite in Battle to Rout Insect Which Yearly Costs Millions

By ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor, NEA Service
The corn borer menace in the United States and Canada has grown to such tremendous proportions that a concentrated international and interstate effort is being made this year to check its progress.

Authorities from Canada and the United States, from the various corn growing states and from interested scientific institutions are combining their ingenuity and resources to stamp out this pest.

Although they have so far succeeded in slowing up the advance of the corn borer, the infested area has spread to threatening limits. Already well entrenched in the area around Lake Erie, the borer threatens to spread out faster than ever into the more thickly cultivated corn areas of Iowa, and the surrounding corn belt.

Quarantine, education and even laws of enforcement are being tried to halt this enemy. Yet somehow or other, the insect has already found its way as far south as Marion county, Ohio, over the watershed between Lake Erie and the Gulf of Mexico, whence a flood, or just heavy rains, may carry infested corn stalks to new regions of attack.

Going Only Eight Years
The rapidity of this advance is shown by the history of the pest in America.

Although believed to have come from Europe about 1899 or 1910, it wasn't discovered until 1917. Then it was found to have covered an area of about 100 square miles around Boston.

Five years later, the area covered by the corn borer went up to nearly 8000 square miles, covering eastern Massachusetts and New Hampshire for nearly 2000 square miles, a 1500 square mile area around Schenectady, N. Y., and more than 2500 square miles along the southern edge of Lake Erie.

In the three years since the fall of 1922, this 8000 square mile area has grown into an infested region of more than 40,000 square miles in the United States alone, despite the utmost efforts of the government to check the borer's advance.

Quarantine, law enforcement, education and laboratory methods were applied. Eight different types of corn borer parasites were let loose over certain areas. Yet the progress of the insect hasn't shown any slackening.

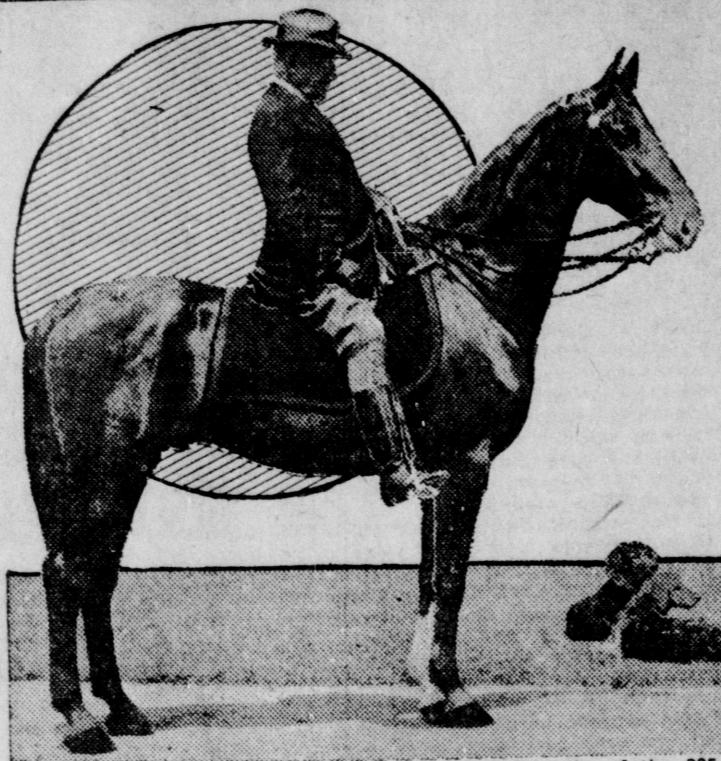

Spreading in Canada
Canada, too, has been almost helpless against the advance of this corn enemy. It crossed the border in 1920 and settled in Ontario, on the other side of Lake Erie. Now it is said to have covered an area of 20,000 to 25,000 square miles, and it's threatening the more productive corn district to the north and west.

Strict quarantine is established, especially during summer. Every automobile leaving the watched corn area is stopped so that no corn is removed. Massachusetts has gone so far as to enforce the plowing under of all corn stubbles. And a strong campaign of education

MORE SOIL IN NATION UNDER TILLAGE SHOWN

If the agricultural development of the United States is lagging behind the progress made in the industrial and financial branches of our national economic life as is indicated by a study of the agricultural situation made by the National Industrial Conference board, 247 Park avenue, New York, it is not because the American farmer is less efficient than the farmers of other countries, the conference board declares.

During the five-year period just preceding the war, in the United States, 244 acres were being cultivated per farm worker; in Scotland, 16.6 acres per worker; in England, 9.5 acres; in France, 5.3 acres; in Germany, 6.2, and in Italy 4.3 acres per worker. From 1910 to 1920, the board points out, American farm labor increased in efficiency about 22.5 per cent, for, although the number of farm workers during that period decreased by about 9 per cent, the volume of crop production increased by about 11 per cent.

Both tractors and horses are used on the farm, although Lowden's personal performance runs to up chiefly of Percherons, Belgians and Clydesdales.

All 10 of the former governor's partners are practically farmers, some of them college men.

U. S. Radio Talks Prove Aid To Farm People

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The new radio service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, organized by Sam Pickard, chief of radio, includes three novel farm features, all departures from customary methods of presenting information by radio.

The "Farm News Digest," available bi-weekly to all radio broadcasting stations, consists of short items of agricultural news selected from several hundred current publications, most of which are not accessible to the average farm reader.

"Fifty Farm Flashes" is a daily service, consisting of 50 timely, practical questions put by farmers and tersely answered by agricultural authorities.

For the women of the household a "Housekeeper's Half Hour" is on the air. An informal, chatty program, both inspirational and practical, presents attractively a great fund of interest to homemakers.

Plans for "The Radio Order of Junior Gardeners" is under way. Boys and girls who enroll in the club will be furnished copies of talks and supplementary gardening material in printed form.

Home Garden Is Great Aid for Diet of Babies

With the present knowledge of the requirements of scientific feeding of infants it seems amazing that past generations ever came to maturity. Now vegetables are regarded as necessary to the healthful diet of the infant from six months on. Chief of these necessities are spinach, tomatoes, string beans and beets for greens.

If there are small children and babies in the family these are essentials in the home garden. While orange juice is usually the start of outside nourishment, tomato juice is an acceptable substitute. Spinach is the earliest crop of infant food. It can be sown just as soon as it is possible to work in the ground.

The beets will be sown at practically the same time with safety and then follow the beans and tomatoes. This will give a succession of infant food all summer with a variety as well.

These foods are rich in vitamins which we now know are essential to building up the physical well-being of humanity and particularly useful to avoid rickets in children and make them sturdy and healthy.

The early sowing of spinach should be in the ground now with later successions until mid-May, which is about as late as it can be planted with any prospect of a crop.

Meanwhile the beets will be flourishing to make up for the departure of spinach. The swiss chard is the most practical for a small garden as it gives an abundance of leaves and keeps on producing if the leaves are cut instead of pulling up the entire plant.

The string beans usually are held back until the second week of May over most of the country to be sure of reasonably warm weather. It is advisable to try a few rows by May 1 if the weather is at all favorable and take a chance on their escaping frosts. Often this chance is successful.

Asparagus is another useful vegetable for the youngsters. An asparagus patch should be started as it will last for generations, increasing in productivity each year with a minimum of care.

MANY DANGERS MET WITH IN LIFE ON FARM

Field Secretary of National Safety Issues Warning Against Unsafe Devices

The silent, open spaces of the country have their dangers and take their toll of deaths and injuries, as do the busy, noisy factories and mills of the city.

There are fires on the farm, there is machinery and there are sharp tools and unsteady animals just as dangerous as the grinding gears of the factory and the speeding automobiles of the city streets.

As a warning to the farmer and his country folk, therefore, the Delaware Safety Council and Marian L. Telford, field secretary of the National Safety Council, have issued instructions for making the country safe for its inhabitants.

"It is estimated that annually 4000 agricultural fatalities occur and that there are 80,000 major and minor accidents among farm people," says Miss Telford.

"Carelessness, overwork and child labor probably cause the majority of accidents," she adds. "Farm hands fall to throw a machine out of gear or fall to unthatch their team before they begin to adjust the machine."

Four Kinds of Trouble

Miss Telford puts the hazards of the farm into four classes: building hazards, mechanical hazards, animal hazards and recreational hazards.

Under building hazards she lists: insufficient lightning protection, ungrounded telephone wires and wire fences, defective chimneys and flues, hot air furnaces and stoves, wooden roofs, kerosene and other oil lighting, matches left carelessly about, smoking in barns, sparks from locomotives, spontaneous combustion in hay and grain.

In addition, she includes falls from poorly built ladders, slippery steps, unprotected chutes and dark cluttered ways.

Livestock Unsafe

Mechanical hazards include all resulting from carelessness with movable machinery, open gears and unthatched horses. Small tools with loose handles or sharp-cutting edges also cause such hazards.

Farmers know the dangers of working with livestock—the fretful horse, the nervous bull and even the apparent quiet cow during milking. Miss Telford warns workers of these animals and their vagaries, and insists on the importance of extreme care in handling all animals.

Play in the country is as dangerous as in the city, she points out, and she sets forth the hazards of auto driving, of fishing, swimming, hunting and even the peaceful gatherings in country school houses, where there is still danger of fire.

For all these she has a general warning of safety.

"Adjustments on machines," she advises, "should not be made while the machines are in motion. All possible adjustments should be made before the horses are attached. Vicious horses should not be used, particularly by children."

"All equipment should be inspected regularly and kept in good repair. Children should not be allowed to work or play around animals or machinery."

Announce Plans For New Trip To Dam Location

Orange county farmers and business men are extended another invitation to join the fourth Colorado River excursion, leaving Thursday, May 6. A large delegation is expected to participate in this auto tour from Los Angeles county.

Over 100 Orange county persons have taken advantage of the previous trips and all have come back with enthusiasm, both as to the advantages of the big project and the splendid outing that the auto tour provides for those participating.

Four days will be occupied in the round trip, leaving the Elks' club at San Bernardino on Fourth street, Thursday morning, May 6, at 6 a. m.

SANITATION ON FARMS SUBJECT OF IMPORTANCE

Assistant Farm Advisor Takes Up Aspects of Problem for Register

By WILLIAM CORY

Assistant Farm Advisor

The disposal of sewage in the rural districts is oftentimes a serious problem. Especially was this true until the development of the septic tank to its present degree of efficiency.

New Purchasers Warned.

Purchasers of rural homes are occasionally imposed upon because of their lack of information concerning septic tanks. The one compartment tank, with baffle boards, such as recommended by the agricultural extension service, is of concrete construction and nearly water tight. The discharge is taken care of through a four-inch clay tile line, the length of which varies with the nature of the soil. In a sandy or more open soil, 100 feet of the tile line should be one hundred and fifty to two hundred feet long with six to eight inches of coarse gravel beneath the tile line. In sandy or more open soils, 100 feet of the tile line would suffice. Care should be taken in laying this line, in any case, to secure an even grade. One inch fall in 10 feet has been found most satisfactory.

Tile Line Necessary.

A few cases have been found where no tile line was laid, the builders either laboring under the impression that a septic tank phenomena absorbed all of its contents or were simply building to sell the property without thought of the welfare of the purchaser.

Over 75 septic tanks have been installed in the past five years as demonstrations or under the supervision of the agricultural extension service. Detailed information may be secured at the office in the hall of records, Santa Ana.

Anyone in the Tustin, West Orange, El Modena or Villa Park farm centers desiring such a demonstration should communicate with the farm advisor's office.

Association has been formed with Col. Clarence Ousley, formerly in the Wilson administration, as director. He is also director of the south-wide movement having the same object. The association has brought 500 Texas bankers into the movement. They have agreed to discount loans to farmers unless the farmers plant food and feed crops.

Col. Ousley maintains that if the farmers will raise their food and feed then the cotton income will be clear profit, no matter what the price of cotton per pound.

Leaders in the movement say that the cotton farmer is in the exact position of a manufacturer who would continue to pile up great stocks of merchandise in the face of a glutted market. This, they declare, is just what the southern farmer has been doing for years, and that he has worked himself into a condition of cotton slavery. The new preachment is that cotton no longer is king, but must share his kingdom with other lords of the soil.

Don't forget KFI lecture, 9 and 10 tonight.

DALLAS, Texas, May 5—King Cotton totters on his throne and the dynasty he has ruled for generations crumbles in his feeble hands. A golden-haired giant from the North is making a bid for the succession, while many lesser barons are menacing the monarch of the South.

The plain fact is that the pig's snout may yet root the white-haired old gentleman from his royal seat.

Corn, hogs, wheat, the milch cow and many humbler members of the agricultural nobility are the foes marshalling under the banner of "diversified farming" the battle cry of which is: "More cotton on fewer acres and more feed on more acres." Throughout the South has gone the clarion call: "Reduce your cotton acreage—feed yourself."

Formerly Ignored.

The cotton farmer formerly has put nearly all into the white money crop. He has ignored the hen, the hog, the cow, and their great ally, corn. Last year Texas farmers sent more than $200,000,000 into the corn states and elsewhere for food and feed which her own soil will raise abundantly. She traded her cheap cotton for high priced feed.

She sold herself into cotton slavery, the more alert agricultural leaders maintain. The state to which this custom has brought the average southern farmer is pictured in the following words by Edward Woodall, of Dallas, a leading Texas agriculturist:

"As one travels through the black land belt he sees only evidences of decay. He sees the farms bodily washed and clay spots cropping out here and there. He sees no freshly painted homes and seldom a new one. He sees no hogs, or few at best, few milch cows, very little poultry, no young horses or mules, but generally old ones."

Why is this? Mr. Woodall answers that the cause is laziness.

"It is not a pleasant picture by any means," he continued, "but worst of all there is an apparently broken morale and general indifference. It is a rude awakening from an attitude of indifference, waste and extravagance. It is closely akin to laziness and certainly is the result of mental laziness."

IVANHOE—Sir Walter Scott's Classic in Pictorial Form

TRAVELING RAPIDLY, THE PALMER AND THE MONEY LENDER SOON REACHED THE OUTSKIRTS OF SHEFFIELD. "HERE THEN WE PART," SAID THE PALMER. "NOT TILL YOU HAVE HAD MY THANKS," SAID ISAAC. "MONEY AND RECOMPENSE ARE REQUIRED NOT OF THEE," SCORNFULLY SPOKE THE PALMER. "GO THEE THY WAY AND I GO MINE." "STAY, STAY," SAID THE OTHER, "I CAN GUESS WHAT THOU LACKEST. THY WISH THIS MOMENT IS FOR A HORSE AND ARMOR!"

WHAT FIEND PROMPTED THAT GUESS?" ASKED THE PALMER HASTILY. THE OTHER INFORMED THE PALMER THAT HE KNEW OF THE KNIGHT'S CHAIN AND SPURS OF GOLD CONCEALED IN THE PALMER'S GOWN, AND PROCEEDED TO WRITE A SCROLL, WHICH ON PRESENTING TO THE MONEY LENDER, WHICH MAN IN LEICESTER, WOULD ENTITLE THE PALMER TO STEED AND ARMOR FOR THE TOURNAMENT. ACCEPTING THE SCROLL, THE PALMER AND THE JEW PARTED.

THE GREAT DAY OF THE TOURNAMENT, OR PASSAGE OF ARMS AS IT WAS CALLED, WAS AT HAND. THE FLAG-DECORATED PAVILIONS WERE FILLED WITH BEAUTIFUL MAIDENS AND RICH NOBLES. POOR AND MIDDLE CLASSES WERE ALSO THERE BY THE HUNDREDS. PRINCE RICHARD, KING OF ENGLAND, WHO WAS A PRISONER IN FOREIGN LANDS, WAS THE HIGHEST IN RANK ATTENDING THE TOURNAMENT. ALL EYES WERE ON HIM AS HE RODE MAJESTICALLY INTO THE ARENA.

ATTRACTED BY A COMMOTION IN THE SECTION OCCUPIED BY THE LESSER GENTRY, THE PRINCE BEHELD THE OLD MONEY-LENDER AND HIS BEAUTIFUL DAUGHTER, REBECCA, ENDEAVORING TO SECURE SEATS AMONG THE UNWILLING CROWD. IMPRESSED BY THE BEAUTY OF THE GIRL, THE PRINCE PAUSED TO SPEAK TO ISAAC, WHOM HE RECOGNIZED. (To Be Continued)

The WOMAN'S DAY

by Allene Summer

"Gimme Your Pay!"

That husbands in many states may legally grab their wives' pay envelopes, spending the shekels for what they will and no questions asked, is one of the many juicy bones of contention gnawed by the National Woman's Party in battle for its "equal rights" amendment.

Did Helen Belong?

Helen of Troy must have been an early member of this party, according to the interpretation of fair Helen by John Erskine who writes her "Private Life." Or perhaps it is Helen's husband, outraged old Menelaus who was the charter member. For we read that with Troy fallen, Menelaus went looking for Helen with a sword in his hand. Undecided whether to thrust the blade through her bosom, or to cut her swan-like throat. He hadn't seen her for some time. She was waiting. He looked at her. The sword embarrassed him. "Helen," he said, "it's time we went home." Someone had given that husband training in the art of "equal rights."

Bad Etiquette

But, though forgiving against his will, husband Menelaus could not brook the mirth of the multitude. We read more—"He had to take her to the ships for the night, but he couldn't make up his mind in what order they should set out. Not side by side, of course. He sent her on ahead to take unprotected whatever insults the curious army might care to hurl at her."

Just As Bad!

We laugh at the manners of Menelaus, but, strictly speaking, our modern code which says that a man, when walking with a woman, must take the outside of the walk, is as crude. The idea behind the code is "protection of the woman from the dangers of the street." As a matter of fact, today's woman should be protected from the pool room loafers and other unpleasantnesses on the inside of the street. This custom was started in the days when gutters ran down roofs which protected over the streets where the escort, on the outside, got the drippings, protecting his lady's plumes and mantles.

Way to Man's Heart!

"Menelaus was busy with his food on the other side of the table." This is the very last line in the book, proving that wives then as now knew perhaps the value of a good table in keeping a man home nights—if one seeks nothing more subtle in the line, and forgets the wistful look for the something lost behind the ranges in Helen's eyes as "her white hands pass the wine."

Was It Ham and Raisins?

Perhaps Menelaus was busy with ham and raisin sauce which might explain and condone his absorption. Modern wives make it like this: One cup raisins soaked in 3 cups water until plump. Cook 5 minutes. Add 4 tablespoons vinegar, 1-2 cup of brown sugar, 1 tablespoon cornstarch mixed with little cold water, cook until thick, about 10 minutes. Serve hot with baked ham.

THE DAILY MANICURE

The amount of time necessary to it. If the nails seem to be stained or dirty dig them into a thick slice of lemon or go over them with cotton wool dipped in a bottle of lemon juice. Keep your cuticle solvent, which is also a bleach, for the weekly manicure. If you are very busy, so busy that every minute of your time counts and manicuring is neglected, use a pink tinted varnish of the best quality you can buy, cleaning off the nails with specially prepared solvent and applying it fresh every week. You need never polish your nails in this case, and your daily treatment is only reshaping them and keeping the cuticle pushed back. But give the nails a "rest" occasionally from the varnish.

A POOR BRIDGE PLAYER GIVES UP IN DESPAIR

When auction bridge came into Are you familiar with the new? view,

But little of the rules I knew. "Love's labor lost!" I sighed. "In vain

The game confused me, I confess, Was all that mental tug and strain, Seven years of anguish and despair

And I gave up seven years or more in learning to compute the score.

Majors and minors seemed to be A problem much too deep for me. I studied long that little chart,

But never got it down by heart, For many years the game I played And never knew what scores were made.

But just a month ago I found My knowledge of the rules was sound.

The values of the suits I'd learned, And so the little chart I burned. Said I: "The age of doubt is passed."

I know what spades are worth at last."

Said I to friends who'd come to play: "I'll keep the tally, if I may."

"Good!" they exclaimed. "Of course you know

Sides With Men Dominated by Their Wives

BY CYNTHIA GREY

"I make all my husband's appointments," said the wife of a successful artist. "I plan his time and make arrangements for all his social and business contracts."

She spoke complacently, as one might of her tame canary.

I met her husband a short time later. In an abstract conversation, we touched on the subject of matrimony, we touched on the subject of matrimony. "My recipe for married happiness is freedom—full, unquestioned freedom for both parties," he said.

The poor man did not know that he was giving anything away. But the whole story of his own marriage came out with the words.

His wife undoubtedly believes that she is a great help to him. She believes that she shields him from annoyance and conserves his time for work. These things are true.

But on the other hand, her constant watchfulness has produced in him a struggling resentment, so that he has come to regard her as an enemy, a keeper, a policeman bent upon spoiling all his fun.

That is what usually happens when a wife takes too great an interest in her husband's career. Of the two evils—uninterestedness and over-interestedness—the latter seems to have the worse results.

Every woman who has been married to a man knows that men are like colts and lambs and calves. They simple must kick up their heels and run around the pasture.

The man who doesn't have the desire to rule his own life and portion out his own days probably hasn't enough life to bother about and would be a most unsatisfactory husband.

Women are born bosses. They take to general managing their families as a duck to water. Their maternity acts as a hobble on their skittish husbands and sons.

As one long-suffering man said to me, "Millie doesn't mother me, she smother me."

Even an artist whose time is valuable cannot afford to shut himself away under his wife's watchful guard, from all the queer and amusing and instructive incidents of daily life. If he does, he will soon go stale in his work.

And the wife who guards the threshold may find herself suddenly the injured and insulted party, if his independence asserts itself and he throws over her dynasty to set up one of his own.

"Yes, you're on the right path," whined the Old White Horse. "Keep to the right when you pass

NO. 3—MISTER DUSTY'S SECOND-HAND STORE

"Why don't you go to the second hand store?" he said.

Nancy and Nick and the Whiffet kept right on looking for his shadow—the Whiffet's lost shadow, you know.

They asked everybody they met if he had seen it, but nobody had. Jack-in-the-Pulpit, however, who is a very learned person and knows about most things like shadows and such, gave them some good advice.

"Why don't you go to the second-hand store?" he said. "They keep all sorts of things. And even if you can't find your own shadow, Whiffet, you may find one just as good."

"Why, so I might," said the little Whiffet happily. "Where is the second-hand store, Mister Jack?"

"It's kept by a fairies called Dusty, up behind the barn," said Jack-in-the-Pulpit. "Ask the Old White Horse. He'll direct you. And while you're at it, if you see a shadow cheap that would fit me, just have Dusty wrap it up and mail it to me collect, will you? But I won't pay over seven and a half cents for it, or three for a quarter, mind. They haven't given me any salary since I started preaching, and I'm living on my savings."

"Have you lost your shadow, too?" said Nancy in surprise.

"Never had any," said Jack. "The sun never gets in the woods here. But I'd sort of like to have one around if I take it into my head to go visiting. I may go to see my grandmother any day."

The Twins and the Whiffet thanked Jack-in-the-Pulpit for his advice and promised to get him a shadow also if they could pick one up cheap. Then they said good-bye and started off to find Dusty's second-hand shop behind the barn.

"Of, I'll take anything!" cried the Whiffet. "Perhaps you have my own shadow, though, Mister Dusty. I lost it coming over the stile and someone must have found it."

"Maybe so," said the fairyman, unfolding all his shadows on the counter.

Menus for the Family

Breakfast—Stewed figs, cereal, thin cream, crisp graham toast, marmalade, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Oyster stew, crisp crackers, pickles (for adults), rye bread and peanut butter sandwiches, pineapple souffle, milk, tea.

Dinner—Baked ham, potatoes au gratin, minted carrots and peas, whole wheat bread, baked rhubarb, coconut macaroons, milk, tea.

Children under six years of age should not be served and ham suggested in the dinner menu. Since they were served oysters for their luncheon a protein food is not necessary.

Minted Carrots and Peas

Six or eight new carrots, 4 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons sugar, 2 tablespoons orange juice, 1 tablespoon minced mint leaves, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 2 cups cooked peas.

Scrape carrots and cut into slices one-half inch thick. Cook in slightly salted, boiling water to cover for 15 minutes. Let water cook away as much as possible and do not drain. When carrots are almost dry add butter and shake the sauce pan over the fire until the slices are all well coated. Add sugar, mint and orange juice to carrots and stir carefully with a fork to mix thoroughly. Cook over boiling water or a low fire until carrots are very tender and the sugar, orange juice and butter are perfectly blended with the mint and carrots. Add peas, heat thoroughly and serve.

ELECT SANTA ANA WOMAN TO CHURCH OFFICE

ORANGE, May 5.—Mrs. E. F. Williamson, Anaheim, will head the San Diego district of the Women's Home Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church for the year as the result of the election of officers held at the annual meeting in the local Methodist Episcopal church yesterday afternoon. Mrs. F. V. Pruitt, Orange, past president, was presented with a basket of flowers in appreciation of her work for the organization by Mrs. S. R. Fitz, Garden Grove, on behalf of the organization.

Other officers elected are as follows: Vice presidents, Mrs. F. A. Robinson, Santa Ana; Mrs. A. R. Hay, Riverside; Mrs. L. C. Shively, Hemet, and Mrs. Isabelle Hadley, San Diego; corresponding secretary, Mrs. G. V. Burns, Santa Ana; assistant corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. V. Pruitt, Orange; recording secretary, Mrs. S. R. Fitz, Garden Grove; treasurer, Mrs. W. B. Payton, Riverside.

Fullerton auxiliary received the $5 prize for having the greatest percentage of its members present on time when the convention opened at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning. Approximately 300 members of auxiliaries from Imperial Valley, Riverside, Hemet, San Diego and Orange county points attended the meet.

The report from the various auxiliaries showed much work accomplished, according to officials.

"Our Goal" by Mrs. C. P. Colgrave, Pasadena, conference corresponding secretary, and "A Remindern" by Mrs. A. G. Scudder, Los Angeles, conference treasurer, were special features on the program. The address of the day was given by the Rev. Harry Shepherd, Los Angeles, on the subject of "The Healing Ministry of Jesus."

The afternoon services were opened by Mrs. Daniel Dundas, Baldwin Park, young people's superintendent, with a quiet hour service.

DRILLING PERMIT OPPOSED, REPORT

HUNTINGTON BEACH, May 5.—While J. C. Theriot, 259 Cerritos avenue, Long Beach, is waiting for his application for permission to drill oil wells in the ocean off this city, it was declared today that chances of the permit being granted are slender. Theriot filed an application with government officials some time ago, asking permission to drill oil wells on property extending nearly two miles along the ocean front and one mile out to sea.

Theriot himself is not very confident that the permit will be granted. It is reported that the government officials have placed a ban on all beach drilling and that similar applications in other portions of the state have been turned down.

In a statement recently Theriot declared that he was backed by a number of capitalists and would make a determined fight to secure the right to drill wells in the surf.

Prospecting by the Standard Oil company, which has drilled wells within a short distance of the ocean, tends to show that if Theriot is successful, he stands to get some good oil wells.

Theriot expects to hear from authorities in Washington soon.

CYPRESS

CYPRESS, May 5.—The Cypress school board met Saturday and organized for the year. G. G. Priddy was elected president and W. C. Miller, clerk. After deciding on the salaries to be paid and the teachers desired, the important question of a building program was taken up. It was desired to ask for a $9000 bond issue. The board will meet with the district attorney this week to make the necessary arrangements for the coming election.

A meeting Friday evening at the school hall failed to call out the voters of the district in any number.

It was hoped that the bond issue and the plans for the necessary building could be taken up at that time but owing to the small turnout of the voters of the district, nothing was done.

G. G. Priddy, chairman of the board, says that it appears almost impossible to awake the people to the needs of the school. The school has been getting along with three teachers this year, with one holding classes in the auditorium, which is very unsatisfactory. There are enough children for the fourth teacher next year and two class rooms are needed.

The school held its spring picnic at Orange County park Saturday. Over a hundred of the children, as well as many parents attended. Games and racing were held, with a picnic lunch at noon.

Late Saturday night, C. L. Barnett, deputy sheriff, caught two two Mexicans in an old car on Crescent street preparing to enter chicken coops. They were prepared with a dozen sacks and a pair of wire fence cutters. They were taken to the county jail and booked on charges of vagrancy.

Sunday, a party of former Arizona people enjoyed a picnic lunch at Orange County park. Those present were Mrs. E. E. Monroe and family, Mr. and Mrs. Al Rogers and family, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Hudson and son, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jennings, of Hynes; Mrs. Irene Thompsons and Don

MEXICANS AND PROHIBITION

In an address delivered to the Junior College Y club, District Attorney A. P. Nelson called attention to a phase of prohibition in this section that is particularly interesting and enlightening. He said that before prohibition a large per cent of the Mexican families of the county were frequently in want because the man of the family spent his money for liquor instead of for food and clothing for his family. In recent years, in spite of the fact that the Mexican population has increased materially, the average Mexican in this county is sober, and gets along without county help. He buys food and clothing for his family and a lot of them are driving around in automobiles.

That's true. And what's true of the Mexican is true of many others. When liquor was easy to get, it was a constant temptation. Now, the price of a bottle of hooch is formidable, and the cost alone, even granting that with some it can be had with ease, is a deterrent to buying. And it cannot be had with the ease that it was to be had in the days of the open saloon.

TEACHING ITS OWN CAREER

Because a number of provincial premiers started their careers as school teachers, a Canadian newspaper concludes that "the best training for a public man in Canada is a few years as a school teacher." The successful teacher must discipline and be disciplined, must be tactful and thorough, and therefore becomes well fitted for an honorable and successful political career.

Teaching has long been used as a stepping stone to other professions. Often young people planning to become doctors or lawyers, but obliged to earn some money first, have chosen teaching for that purpose. This has been as true in our own country as in any other.

Somewhat it seems a bit unfair to teaching, which is as valuable a profession as any of them. Teaching should be regarded as a career in itself rather than a stepping stone to one. If everybody took to teaching simply to earn a little money temporarily, the schools would be left always with a shifting personnel. New, green teachers would always be starting. There would be few experienced teachers.

Fortunately this is not a real danger. Stricter requirements in the character, personality, education and experience of teachers are arousing in the public mind the respect for the profession which it deserves and are causing better fitted individuals to choose it as a career in itself. Better pay for teachers, too, is having its effect in attracting and holding fine men and women, and that is particularly true in California, where our school-teacher standards are very high and the profession calls and holds teachers of a high standard.

IRISH MAGNANIMITY

The Irish Free State has decided to pay $8,000,000 of obligations contracted by De Valera in his revolution. That is good news to 50,000 Americans who provided the money. It is also an act of rare magnanimity on the part of the Free State government, which De Valera has steadily opposed.

At the same time, there is a certain justice in it; for the Free State was to some extent the benefactor of De Valera's last-ditch fight. It can regard itself as the successor of that rebel's "Provisional Republic."

The fact that about half of the money was never spent, but is still in banks in New York and Dublin, makes it easier. Payment will begin a year from now.

So ends a stormy period of Irish history. It is a far cry from the uncompromising warfare of the champions of Irish freedom to the generosity and tolerance marking the recent history of the Irish Free State. By such acts, Ireland proves its capacity for self-government.

MODERATION IS BEST

"Moderation in all things," was Chauncey M. Dewey's answer when asked to what he attributed his long life.

It is one of the simplest rules ever given in answer to a question which is continually asked of elderly men and women.

Simple though it is, it is hard for a nation like ours to follow. We pursue fads and new movements, prosperity and pleasure, too intensely and too swiftly to be moderate as we go along. Yet it is a habit worth striving for, rewarding with peace, sanity, health and similar blessings most of those who acquire it. The "middle way" is best.

MAGICAL DEBT PAYMENT

One of the finest fabrics of financial imagination on record is revealed by an American correspondent in London. It is a colossal scheme whereby the entire European debt to the United States could be wiped out.

The big idea is to change governmental obligations to private obligations and discount them for cash.

It starts with the Dawes plan, under which Germany pledged for reparations to the Allies $3,750,000,000 in mortgages on German railroads and industrial plants. These securities, "world bankers" suggest, are gilt-edged and might be used as the basis of international liquidation.

Suppose they were sold to private investors, tax-free. They should bring in more than $3,000,000,000. The proceeds would be used at once to settle the Allies' claims against Germany, and would be enough to wipe them out, when the claims were discounted at current value.

The Allies then would turn right around and, discounting the $11,000,000,000 or so that they owe the United States, settle those debts likewise for their cash value. Thus Germany's less than four billions would pay off everything, and the governments would all be free of foreign debt.

If this makes one's head swim, consider also that American citizens would be expected to buy nearly all of those German bonds. Thus Americans, by investing in German promises to pay less than $4,000,000,000, would discharge all of Europe's war debt to the United States.

The foreign financial experts are said to admit frankly that "the world is not yet ready" for this plan, but they think it may get a more respectful hearing in three or four years from now.

That may be. But while world psychology is being educated up to such a financial coup, one thing worth noting is the frank assumption that the American debt settlements, which the debtors mostly seem to regard as so hard on them, have in fact virtually canceled most of the indebtedness. If it is true that all the billions that England, Italy, France and the rest are promising to pay us over a period of 62 years are actually worth less than $4,000,000,000 cash in hand, it is worth while to have foreign testimony to such generosity on our part.

Vast Game Reserve Is Planned

Pasadena Star-News

A great game refuge is to be created in the San Jacinto mountains, a part of the San Bernardino Forest Reserve, under terms of a measure introduced and passed for passage through Congress by Congressman Phil D. Swing, of the Eleventh California district. Civic organizations here and elsewhere in Southern California have endorsed and championed this proposal, and the Sierra Club, which has members here, has been zealous in its behalf. The bill was referred to Secretary of Agriculture Jardine and was approved by them, with certain slight amendments. The amendments have been made in accordance with their suggestions.

Lovers of nature and of wild-life, residing here, will be interested to learn that Congressman Swing's measure would set aside forty-three sections, or 27,520 acres, in the San Bernardino national forest reserve for a game refuge and breeding ground for all kinds of wild animal and bird life. The area embraced in the proposed preserve is described as "the wildest, roughest and most inaccessible in Southern California, and therefore highly suitable for the purpose intended, while of little or no value for anything else."

This region has been the favorite haunt of deer and mountain sheep, but the annual slaughter by hunters is lessening their numbers so that, unless protection is afforded, they will become practically extinct.

It is pointed out that since the area is already within a national forest and the administration of the game preserve would be in the hands of the forest rangers, there would be nothing added to the present cost of administering the San Bernardino National Forest.

It is proposed that the preserve be called the Tahquitz National Game Preserve, after the Indian name of its most central valley and the peak in its southwest corner.

This measure, so commendably and vigorously sponsored by Congressman Swing, should be supported actively here. Write or wire to Washington in support of this measure known as House Resolution 8120.

A London dispatch says that the demand for shoes made of shark skins is threatening to exterminate sharks, especially as the fins of that voracious fish make excellent gelatin. When the English waters shall have been cleared of sharks resort might be had to the oil fields of Texas.—Riverside Press.

Yucca blossoms can now be listed as one of the most expensive as well as fragrant blossoms, with the price of a bouquet being $50. This was gleaned in the warning issued by County Fire Warden Roy M. Tuttle, that there was a fine of $50 attached to the offense of picking the blossoms.

The fine will follow each offense, it was declared. Every effort will be made to enforce the full limit of the law against tourists and others who violate this law.

EXCITEMENT DISRUPTS DIGESTION

It has long been recognized that various emotions are accompanied by special facial expressions. Certain kinds of feeling, especially the happy kind, help the proper functioning of the organs while others have an unfavorable action.

The energy for our activities comes from food. From meat, milk, eggs, cereals, vegetables, fruits, and greens we get sufficient protein for tissue building material, sufficient starches and sugar for energy, sufficient fats, mineral matter, vitamins, and water to enable the body to work well and to keep up its power to offset injurious agencies.

With a limited diet there is lack of proper building material, lack of proper mineral balance and of vitamins. These dangers are especially marked when the diet is made up mainly of highly milled cereals such as soda biscuits, white bread made with out milk and yeast, white rice and similar articles, but these articles of diet are efficiently utilized by our bodies if mingled with meat, greens and fruits which supply their deficiencies.

Given a fair chance the human system digests the food, assimilates the digested products and rearranges the absorbed material with a precise and admirable harmony in which the various organs and cells interplay.

This harmony begins even at the sight of food and with pleasant surroundings continues until the food is utilized for any activity we desire. This may be seen in the watering of the mouth which is but a preparatory stage in digestion.

As a result of the sight, smell, taste and feel of food in the mouth, message is sent to the stomach, a flow of digestive juice is started and the digestive processes are enabled to go on without delay. In a like way, just as soon as partly digested food begins to empty into the intestines, a chemical messenger is sent to all the glands taking part in intestinal digestion and a steady flow of intestinal digestive juice is ready for the oncoming food.

In digestion of food in the intestines, the most important in the body, there is beautiful interplay of various juices and chemical digesting agents.

All these nicely balanced reactions of digestion go on best in happy surroundings. Surface effects of excitement are well known. Thus the contraction of blood vessels with resulting paleness of the face, the stopping of the flow of saliva, the rising of hairs, the rapid beating of the heart, the quickened respiration, the trembling and twitching of the lips are bodily changes which all have seen in excitement, especially in fear, horror and pain. Not only are external organs affected by excitement but the deep ones also.

Studies have shown that the conditions favorable to proper digestion are upset when we experience vexation, worry and anxiety or when emotions such as anger and fear are allowed to prevail.

By strong excitement, particularly of the unpleasant kind, the secretions of the glands of the mouth, stomach and the intestines and the flow of bile may be checked for some time.

In such conditions, the food lying heavy in the stomach is an irritant rather than a benefit. The stomach is if we have experienced an outburst of passion or strong excitement it is well not to take nourishment until we are calmed down and are willing to look at things good naturally or with a courageous poise.

This applies to man, woman and child. If this rule were followed, there would be fewer nervous disorders.

Fat Chance of Catching Anything Now

The Creative West

Oakland Tribune

Writing in a late number of the London Spectator, J. H. Lee Strachey, the eminent English publicist, pays a strikingly beautiful tribute to the pioneers of the west. "All Americans," he says, "are at heart optimists, but the Westerners are a super variety of the breed. They believe that, come what may, they are certain to win. Even when they seem depressed and anxious, they keep alive, though strictly hidden away, the sacred flame. You cannot shake their belief that in the end all will be well."

"How," he continues, "can a people genuinely possessed of this belief fail? They have an unlimited and inexhaustible credit at the Bank of Endeavor. After all, what is that precious thing credit but a belief—a belief that you will pay your way, win and make good, and that nothing can permanently arrest your forward movement?"

This "creative optimism," Strachey credits to the men "who first crossed the mountains and pushed on to overtake the retreating sun."

"Their torches were fired as they crossed the Alleghenies. At once they began to pass the fire, not only forward, but back to those they left behind. Soon the whole continent was afame. It is because of this that America holds that she owes so deep a debt to the men of the Western states."

A strikingly beautiful tribute to our pioneers, and every whit true.

Worth While Verse

CALIFORNIA

"Twixt the seas and the deserts,
"Twixt the wastes and the waves
Between the sands of buried lands,
The ocean's coral caves,
It lies not east nor west.
But like a scroll unfurled,
Where the hand of God hath flung
Down the middle of the world.

It lies where God hath spread it,
In the gladness of his eyes,
Like a flame of jeweled tapestry
Beneath his shining skies;

With the green of woven meadows,

And the hills, in golden chains,

The light of leaping rivers,

And the flash of popped plains.

Days rise that gleam in glory,

Days die with sunset's breath,

While from Cathay, that was of old,

Sail countless argosies;

Morn breaks again in splendor

O'er the giant newborn West,

But of all the land God fashioned,

'Tis this land is the best.

Sun and dew that kiss it,

Balmy winds that blow,

The stars in clustered diadems

Upon its peaks of snow;

The mighty mountains o'er it,

Below, the white seas twirled—

Just California stretching down

The middle of the world.
